U.S. Admits Stepping Up Bombing Inside Cambodia

"SHOPPING" FOR ENEMIES — This Vietnamese marine looks as though he's on a shopping trip as he plods through a rice paddy near Kampong Trabek, Cambodia, looking for Communist soldiers. The search and destroy operation involved some 2,500 South Vietnamese troops.

B52s Hit Reds At Artillery Base

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers attempted today to scatter North Vietnamese troops reported massing for an attack on a South Vietnamese artillery and patrol base near the northwest frontier with Laos.

Twenty of the big bombers unloaded 600 tons of bombs on enemy bunkers, base camps and staging areas within three miles of Fire base O'Reilly, one of five allied bases set up in the area to block an enemy advance into the populous coastal lowlands 20 miles to the east. Tactical fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships flew through antiaircraft fire to pound North Vietnamese positions closer to the base.

Associated Press correspondent Willis Johnson reported from O'Reilly that despite the heavy air strikes, enemy gunners were still firing mortars into the base.

North Vietnamese infantrymen struck a few hours before dawn with machine guns, grenades and flame throwers, attacking government troops in night bivouac half a mile south of the base. Maj. Nguyen Van, commander of the base, said 15 North Vietnamese and one South Vietnamese were killed and four government troops were wounded.

Officers said at least seven South Vietnamese have been killed and 45 wounded in three days of fighting around O'Reilly. Most of them were in patrols operating from the base.

The regimental commander, Col. Nguyen Van Diem, estimated more than 200 enemy killed by air and artillery in the three days of fighting, and said about 50 more had been killed by South Vietnamese infantrymen.

A sixth base, Ripcord, was abandoned by paratroopers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division last July 23 after North Vietnamese troops killed 61 paratroopers and wounded 345 in a three-week siege.

O'Reilly, a former 101st Airborne base reopened by the South Vietnamese 1st Division last March, sits on a 1,500-foot ridge less than five miles north of Ripcord. It is north of the A Shau valley and 12 miles from the Laotian border.

Maj. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, 1st Division commander, said elements of three North Vietnamese regiments had moved into the region from Laos. He predicted "an all-out effort to get O'Reilly."

More than 1,000 enemy troops have been reported within a mile of the base, and U.S. Air Force and Marine fighter-bombers have been pounding them for three days.

Officials Insist Raids Related To Viet Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter bombers and gun ships have doubled the number of air strikes against enemy targets in Cambodia this month, Pentagon sources said in confirming reports of stepped up U.S. air attacks.

Since Aug. 1, the sources said, U.S. warplanes have flown an average of 50 attack sorties at supplies throughout Cambodia as compared to a daily average of 24 during July.

A sortie is one fight by one plane.

In addition, there have been an undisclosed number of photo-reconnaissance flights.

The sources gave no reason for the sharp increase in U.S. air raids which coincided with a step-up in ground fighting between the Cambodians and communist forces.

Eyewitness reports from American newsmen say U.S. planes, loaded with napalm and conventional bombs, are being used to provide direct combat air support for beleaguered Cambodian troops.

The Nixon administration has repeatedly denied giving close air support to the Cambodians. In its latest policy statement Monday, the Pentagon declared, "the President's policy on air operations in Cambodia is that we will conduct operations to interdict enemy supplies, communications and personnel when . . . such operations will enhance the safety and security of U.S. allied personnel in South Vietnam."

The statement acknowledged, however, that "these operations may also have a dual benefit that may serve our purposes and at the same time serve the Cambodian government."

The level of U.S. air attacks remains far below that mounted in May and June when American and South Vietnamese in-

East-West Talk Outlook Rated Unlikely

LONDON (AP) — Prospects for East-West talks to reduce troops and arms in Europe remain remote despite the new Soviet-West German nonaggression treaty, diplomatic sources said today.

Informants said it would be at least four months before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization responds to the latest Soviet proposal for talks on mutual reduction of arms in Europe.

Although Bonn and Moscow are renouncing the use of force against each other and recognizing existing borders in Europe, troops and arms on both sides of the cold war frontiers are likely to remain at existing levels indefinitely.

Talks on mutual arms reductions are proposed for a European security conference, an idea long pushed by the Kremlin and the Soviet bloc.

The Warsaw Pact nations at a meeting in Budapest in June revised their proposed agenda for a European security conference and agreed for the first time to include talks on "the reduction of foreign armed forces on the territories of European states."

Sources here said the NATO allies would not respond before their foreign ministers meet in Brussels in December.

Two neutral European governments—Austria and Finland—also have been actively pressing for a European security conference. Both have offered their capital cities for preparatory talks. But the sources here said these proposals would also have to await the NATO meeting in December.

Some NATO nations, notably the United States, and Britain, have long been skeptical of the value of a European security conference without thorough preparation.

There is concern in some Western capitals that the Soviets could use the conference as a propaganda forum and as a confirmation of the formal international recognition the Western nations are unwilling to concede to East Germany.

Troops Depart, But Lima Still A Tinderbox

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The soldiers were gone today, but this northwestern Ohio city of 53,000 remained under a state of emergency.

Black militants, meanwhile, were circulating petitions demanding the dismissal of two policemen involved in a fatal shooting Wednesday that triggered two nights of racial violence.

The 550 National Guardsmen, stationed here since early Thursday, were withdrawn by Adj. Gen. S. T. Del Corso Monday night after Lima remained calm for a fourth straight day.

But 80 city policemen and 50 sheriff's deputies continued patrolling the city's troubled south side in 12-hour shifts.

Mayor Christian P. Morris, saying he was apprehensive about the chances of renewed violence, ordered that a state of emergency and bans on sales of guns and gasoline in cans remain in effect.

Morris declared the emergency and imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew Wednesay night after rioting erupting over the police shooting of Christine Ricks. The curfew was lifted Saturday.

Police said the 45 - year - old Negro woman had grabbed the revolver of one of two policemen attempting to arrest a youth and shot the officer in the ear. The policeman's partner then wounded Mrs. Ricks fatally.

Within hours angry crowds had gathered in the predominantly black area and had to be dispersed by police using tear gas. The disturbance then turned to snipings and firebombings which continued sporadically through Thursday night.

Officials Fear For Hostages In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The murder of a kidnaped U.S. official and a new execution threat increased fears today for the lives of Brazilian consul and an American agricultural expert still held by the Tupamaro guerrillas.

A local radio station reported early today that a body had been found near a beachside avenue and possibly was that of the Brazilian diplomat. Police and soldiers searched the area but reported they found no body.

The leftist Tupamaros abducted U.S. police adviser Dan A. Mitrione and Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide on July 31 and demanded the release of all political prisoners in Uruguay as ransom. The government refused to deal with the kidnapers, and Mitrione was found shot to death early Monday in an abandoned stolen car.

Last Friday the guerrillas seized another hostage, Claude L. Fly, 65, of Fort Collins, Colo., an American agricultural expert working for the Uruguayan government.

A Uruguayan television station received a note Monday saying the kidnapers would execute Daias Gomide at midnight if the estimated 150 political prisoners were not freed. Government security agencies refused to confirm the authenticity of the note, and the deadline passed with no word from the kidnapers.

The note did not mention Fly.

Congress met in special session Monday and approved President Jorge Pacheco Areco's request for suspension of all individual civil rights for 20 days. This gives the police more freedom in their massive search for the kidnapers and their hostages, which already has resulted in the capture of 100 suspects and several top Tupamaro leaders.

Lethal Canisters Float Ashore In Great Britain

FRESHWATER, Isle of Wight (AP) — More than 40 canisters of a potentially lethal chemical have been washed up on beaches of the Isle of Wight off England's south coast.

Police reported they were similar to canisters of ferric chloride, a boiler cleaner, which the Royal Navy had recently dumped in deep water.

The manufacturers, Berk Chemicals, said: "When mixed with water, ferric chloride gives off a toxic gas which could be lethal under certain circumstances. It is acidic when dissolved in water and anyone splashed with it should wash it off."

Police cars toured the island warning people not to touch the canisters if any more are washed ashore. The Isle of Wight is one of Britain's main summer resorts and its beaches now are at their most crowded.

Train Is Derailed; No Danger Seen

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP)—Three cars of an 80-car Penn Central freight train derailed in the nearby village of Corning Monday night. There were no injuries. Damage estimates were unavailable.

A derailed tanker contained an unidentified gas, but officials said it was neither explosive nor corrosive.

Deny King 'Lectured' By Hoover

NEW YORK (AP) — Three associates of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his widow have taken issue with a Time magazine account of a 1964 meeting between King and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

The three colleagues of the slain civil rights worker branded as "totally false" Time's report that Hoover confronted King with wiretaps revealing King's alleged extramarital activities.

Coretta S. King said in a statement Monday from Atlanta that the Time story "does not correspond" with what her husband told her.

Time, in discussing author John Williams' new book about King, "The King God Didn't Save," said that Hoover "lectured" King on his morals and suggested he tone down his criticism of the FBI.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; the Rev. Andrew Young and the Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy said in a joint statement Monday:

"All three of us were present during the entire discussion and at no point did Mr. Hoover lecture Dr. King or even comment on his personal life . . . Time magazine discredits itself in seeking to throw mud on a man admired and loved by millions, black and white. It discredits itself in stooping to sensationalism through fiction and irresponsibility."

Nerve Gas Trains Rolling; Florida Set To Sue Army

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two trains carrying nerve gas described by an Army spokesman as "no more dangerous than a load of coal," moved across Southern states today on their slow trips to the sea.

The Army's plans to dump the gas in the Atlantic 282 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla., apparently faced a court challenge from that state.

"We are going to sue the Army tomorrow," Nathaniel P. Reed, chairman of Florida's Air and Water Pollution Control Board, said Monday night.

The 418 concrete and steel jacketed vaults of nerve gas rockets left Monday from Army depots at Richmond, Ky., and Anniston, Ala. for Sunny Point, N.C. Later in the week the Army plans to load the vaults aboard a barge, tow it to sea and scuttle it.

Col. S. M. Burney, commander of the Anniston depot, said the vaults are "safer than coal because a coal train can wreck and this one can't."

Residents of many Georgia communities through which the train from Anniston passed, Monday seemed to share the Army's confidence.

"Nobody is afraid of this train because back during World War II we all saw some spookier things come down these tracks," C. S. Stephens said. He is the manager of a concrete plant at Tallapoosa, Ga., the first Georgia town through which the train passed.

The Lexington train was almost ignored by residents of the Eastern Kentucky mountains as only handfuls of people gathered at crossings near the larger towns as the train went by.

The Anniston train changed crews at Griffin and was halted a few minutes north of Macon for repairs to a broken air line before moving slowly through the city toward Athens.

Mayor Ronnie Thompson of Macon, who had opposed the shipment, then changed his mind, was among those watching. He said he was relieved the train was through his city.

Before the Kentucky train tackled the steep mountain grades that lead into North Carolina section crews combed the tracks for possible land slides in the mountainous area around Spruce Pine, N.C., where rain was falling.

Elaborate security precautions were taken for the mission, which the Army calls Operation Chase.

Each train was preceded by a pilot train to check for any defects in the rails or rail bed. The pilot trains carried decontamination teams, ambulances, a chemical detection unit and armed security units.

The nerve gas vaults were traveling in open gondola-type freight cars with signs warning that they contained poisonous gas.

Brandt Wants Summit Meeting In Near Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt wants a summit meeting with the United States, Britain and France after he signs a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet Union, the White House says.

A spokesman said Monday that President Nixon received Brandt's request in a letter over the weekend. Full details were not disclosed, and there was no immediate indication of how Nixon might respond.

Earlier reports from London said Prime Minister Edward Heath was studying a Brandt proposal for a Western summit.

Diplomatic sources say Brandt wants to discuss the future course of East-West relations following the signing of West Germany's pact with the Soviets.

ABM Foes Continue Drive To Halt Expansion Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of the Safeguard antiballistic missile system attempted in their last full day of debate to dispel claims that expansion of the missiles is needed to spur the Soviet Union into an arms limitation agreement.

A showdown vote on funds for two more ABM sites is scheduled Wednesday, and it appeared that opponents may have picked up enough strength to reverse their one-vote setback of last year.

But Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania declared he will support Safeguard as a minimum response to a growing Soviet missile threat and as a bargaining chip at the strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks in Vienna.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a leading opponent, acknowledged "the bargaining chip argument distracts us from the argument Safeguard simply will not work."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., chairman of the Republican Policy Conference, said Safeguard is essential to meaningful negotiations with the Soviets and defended its deployment as a "restrained response to grave threats."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., is co-author of an amendment to restrict Safeguard expansion to the two sites approved by one vote in last year's two-month debate. He contended in a speech prepared for Senate delivery that Safeguard is of little importance at the SALT talks when compared to the relative strategic positions of the two nations.

Allott, in a prepared speech, said the amendment sponsored by Cooper and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., would virtually kill the entire Safeguard program, and that Safeguard is the least costly of the various possible responses to the Russian missile threat.

Other senators have claimed the ultimate cost of Safeguard will range from $4 billion to as much as $50 billion.

The Soviets, Allott asserted, are building such huge missiles as the SS9—comparable to nothing in the U.S. arsenal—which has the capacity of destroying U.S. missiles and "makes sense only as the basis of a mighty first-strike capacity."

Even if that is the case, Cooper replied, Safeguard is no answer.

Taft Sponsors Spending Limit Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R - Ohio, cosponsored Monday the "fiscal responsibility act of 1970," which would set a $205.6 billion ceiling on all federal spending in fiscal 1971.

The bill would prohibit spending above that figure, even when Congress appropriates funds in excess of presidential estimates, and would authorize the budget director to adjust spending to bring outlays within the ceiling.

Postcard Late By 28 Years

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Frank Prohaska of Sandusky finally has received the postcard her brother mailed to her more than 28 years ago. It arrived the other day along with a telephone bill and a magazine, which had been mailed the day before.

The card, battered around the edges, bore an oriental illustration and was printed in Shanghai. It was postmarked "U.S. Army Postal Service, 4 p.m., June 6, 1942."

Another cancellation showed that the card had been received the day before delivery at the Sandusky post office. But no one at the post office knew where it had been in the intervening years.

U.N. Summit Meet Possible

Nixon, Kosygin May Be There

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin "very probably" will attend the U.N. General Assembly's 25th anniversary session this fall, an authoritative U.N. source said today.

The assembly will mark its first quarter century during the three-month annual session that starts Sept. 15. Heads of state and government of all 126 member countries have been invited to speak either during the general debate Sept. 17-Oct. 2 or at a special commemorative session to be held Oct. 19-24.

Oct. 24, 1945 is the date the U.N. charter took effect

The U.S. delegation has reserved places on the speakers' lists for the first day of the general debate and for the last day of the commemorative session. There are indications that Nixon might prefer the earlier date.

The Soviet delegation has also reserved places on both lists. If Kosygin shows up, it probably will be for the commemorative session.

The fact that a country is on the speakers' list does not necessarily mean a top leader will attend. Among those who have announced or indicated that they will appear are the presidents of Cameroon, the Central African Republic, Tanzania, Upper Volta, Cyprus and Finland; the chancellor of Austria, and the prime ministers of Afghanistan, Austria, Britain, Japan, Jamaica, Lesotho, Malta, Mauritius and Senegal.

Student Leader Sees More Campus Trouble

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The president of the National Student Association predicted today the coming academic year will see an increase in campus activism, "much tougher and much more locally centered."

Charles Palmer said in an interview he couldn't anticipate the specific patterns of increased student protest. But he said he was sure much effort would be directed against the Vietnam war, racism, pollution and corporations which manufacture war goods or contribute to contamination of the environment.

U.S. military involvement in Cambodia this year made college people "a little harder, a little tougher, a little more cynical about the responsiveness of the political system, a little more cynical about how the political protester is dealt with in this country," said Palmer, of East Los Angeles, Calif.

"Next year will see a redoubling of activism," said the 23-year-old graduate of the University of California at Berkeley. The NSA is holding its annual congress here.

The NSA says it has chapters on 500 college and university campuses and claims to be the nation's largest student organization. Its membership is counted by chapter, rather than by student.

"The exact thrusts depend upon what happens externally," Palmer said. "Lest we become reactionary, we'll have to respond to what the President and other people are doing."

But he said there is bound to be activity against government, and it may include some directed at state governments, at mayors and at campus administrations. It will all depend upon what issues arise, Palmer said.

Without recommending any cooling of campus activism, Palmer said the time has come for students to go to their home communities and elsewhere to spread word of what they've been doing. The generation gap is widening, he said, and communication is important.

"I think one of the real crises facing students the next couple years is how to build and broaden their base, how to get out to other people, how to understand what other people are doing and how to make understood what student interests are,"

Palmer said students have tremendous problems understanding and being sensitive to the problems of most working people.

"Most students have been away from home for a while," he said. "They don't know about

East-West Talk Outlook Rated Unlikely

LONDON (AP) — Prospects for East-West talks to reduce troops and arms in Europe remain remote despite the new Soviet-West German nonaggression treaty, diplomatic sources said today.

Informants said it would be at least four months before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization responds to the latest Soviet proposal for talks on mutual reduction of arms in Europe.

Although Bonn and Moscow are renouncing the use of force against each other and recognizing existing borders in Europe, troops and arms on both sides of the cold war frontiers are likely to remain at existing levels indefinitely.

Talks on mutual arms reductions are proposed for a European security conference, an idea long pushed by the Kremlin and the Soviet bloc.

The Warsaw Pact nations at a meeting in Budapest in June revised their proposed agenda for a European security conference and agreed for the first time to include talks on "the reduction of foreign armed forces on the territories of European states."

Sources here said the NATO allies would not respond before their foreign ministers meet in Brussels in December.

Two neutral European governments—Austria and Finland—also have been actively pressing for a European security conference. Both have offered their capital cities for preparatory talks. But the sources here said these proposals would also have to await the NATO meeting in December.

Some NATO nations, notably the United States, and Britain, have long been skeptical of the value of a European security conference without thorough preparation.

There is concern in some Western capitals that the Soviets could use the conference as a propaganda forum and as a confirmation of the formal international recognition the Western nations are unwilling to concede to East Germany.

Deny King 'Lectured' By Hoover

NEW YORK (AP) — Three associates of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his widow have taken issue with a Time magazine account of a 1964 meeting between King and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

The three colleagues of the slain civil rights worker branded as "totally false" Time's report that Hoover confronted King with wiretaps revealing King's alleged extramarital activities.

Coretta S. King said in a statement Monday from Atlanta that the Time story "does not correspond" with what her husband told her.

Time, in discussing author John Williams' new book about King, "The King God Didn't Save," said that Hoover "lectured" King on his morals and suggested he tone down his criticism of the FBI.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; the Rev. Andrew Young and the Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy said in a joint statement Monday:

"All three of us were present during the entire discussion and at no point did Mr. Hoover lecture Dr. King or even comment on his personal life . . . Time magazine discredits itself in seeking to throw mud on a man admired and loved by millions, black and white. It discredits itself in stooping to sensationalism through fiction and irresponsibility."

Brandt Wants Summit Meeting In Near Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt wants a summit meeting with the United States, Britain and France after he signs a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet Union, the White House says.

A spokesman said Monday that President Nixon received Brandt's request in a letter over the weekend. Full details were not disclosed, and there was no immediate indication of how Nixon might respond.

Earlier reports from London said Prime Minister Edward Heath was studying a Brandt proposal for a Western summit.

Diplomatic sources say Brandt wants to discuss the future course of East-West relations following the signing of West Germany's pact with the Soviets.

Troops Depart, But Lima Still A Tinderbox

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The soldiers were gone today, but this northwestern Ohio city of 53,000 remained under a state of emergency.

Black militants, meanwhile, were circulating petitions demanding the dismissal of two policemen involved in a fatal shooting Wednesday that triggered two nights of racial violence.

The 550 National Guardsmen, stationed here since early Thursday, were withdrawn by Adj. Gen. S. T. Del Corso Monday night after Lima remained calm for a fourth straight day.

But 80 city policemen and 50 sheriff's deputies continued patrolling the city's troubled south side in 12-hour shifts.

Mayor Christian P. Morris, saying he was apprehensive about the chances of renewed violence, ordered that a state of emergency and bans on sales of guns and gasoline in cans remain in effect.

Morris declared the emergency and imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew Wednesay night after rioting erupting over the police shooting of Christine Ricks. The curfew was lifted Saturday.

Police said the 45 - year - old Negro woman had grabbed the revolver of one of two policemen attempting to arrest a youth and shot the officer in the ear. The policeman's partner then wounded Mrs. Ricks fatally.

Within hours angry crowds had gathered in the predominantly black area and had to be dispersed by police using tear gas. The disturbance then turned to snipings and firebombings which continued sporadically through Thursday night.

Officials Fear For Hostages In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The murder of a kidnaped U.S. official and a new execution threat increased fears today for the lives of Brazilian consul and an American agricultural expert still held by the Tupamaro guerrillas.

A local radio station reported early today that a body had been found near a beachside avenue and possibly was that of the Brazilian diplomat. Police and soldiers searched the area but reported they found no body.

The leftist Tupamaros abducted U.S. police adviser Dan A. Mitrione and Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide on July 31 and demanded the release of all political prisoners in Uruguay as ransom. The government refused to deal with the kidnapers, and Mitrione was found shot to death early Monday in an abandoned stolen car.

Last Friday the guerrillas seized another hostage, Claude L. Fly, 65, of Fort Collins, Colo., an American agricultural expert working for the Uruguayan government.

A Uruguayan television station received a note Monday saying the kidnapers would execute Daias Gomide at midnight if the estimated 150 political prisoners were not freed. Government security agencies refused to confirm the authenticity of the note, and the deadline passed with no word from the kidnapers.

The note did not mention Fly. Congress met in special session Monday and approved President Jorge Pacheco Areco's request for suspension of all individual civil rights for 20 days. This gives the police more freedom in their massive search for the kidnapers and their hostages, which already has resulted in the capture of 100 suspects and several top Tupamaro leaders.

Lethal Canisters Float Ashore In Great Britain

FRESHWATER, Isle of Wight (AP) — More than 40 canisters of a potentially lethal chemical have been washed up on beaches of the Isle of Wight off England's south coast.

Police reported they were similar to canisters of ferric chloride, a boiler cleaner, which the Royal Navy had recently dumped in deep water.

The manufacturers, Berk Chemicals, said: "When mixed with water, ferric chloride gives off a toxic gas which could be lethal under certain circumstances. It is acidic when dissolved in water and anyone splashed with it should wash it off."

Police cars toured the island warning people not to touch the canisters if any more are washed ashore. The Isle of Wight is one of Britain's main summer resorts and its beaches now are at their most crowded.

Train Is Derailed; No Danger Seen

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP)—Three cars of an 80-car Penn Central freight train derailed in the nearby village of Corning Monday night. There were no injuries. Damage estimates were unavailable.

A derailed tanker contained an unidentified gas, but officials said it was neither explosive nor corrosive.

Student Leader Sees More Campus Trouble

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The president of the National Student Association predicted today the coming academic year will see an increase in campus activism, "much tougher and much more locally centered."

Charles Palmer said in an interview he couldn't anticipate the specific patterns of increased student protest. But he said he was sure much effort would be directed against the Vietnam war, racism, pollution and corporations which manufacture war goods or contribute to contamination of the environment.

U.S. military involvement in Cambodia this year made college people "a little harder, a little tougher, a little more cynical about the responsiveness of the political system, a little more cynical about how the political protester is dealt with in this country," said Palmer, of East Los Angeles, Calif.

"Next year will see a redoubling of activism," said the 23-year-old graduate of the University of California at Berkeley. The NSA is holding its annual congress here.

The NSA says it has chapters on 500 college and university campuses and claims to be the nation's largest student organization. Its membership is counted by chapter, rather than by student.

"The exact thrusts depend upon what happens externally," Palmer said. "Lest we become reactionary, we'll have to respond to what the President and other people are doing."

But he said there is bound to be activity against government, and it may include some directed at state governments, at mayors and at campus administrations. It will all depend upon what issues arise, Palmer said.

Without recommending any cooling of campus activism, Palmer said the time has come for students to go to their home communities and elsewhere to spread word of what they've been doing. The generation gap is widening, he said, and communication is important.

"I think one of the real crises facing students the next couple years is how to build and broaden their base, how to get out to other people, how to understand what other people are doing and how to make understood what student interests are,"

Palmer said students have tremendous problems understanding and being sensitive to the problems of most working people.

"Most students have been away from home for a while," he said. "They don't know about

Sparks apparently landed in the cobs, starting the blaze.

Rift Reported Developing Among Tate Case Lawyers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rift appears to be developing in the defense team in the Sharon Tate murder trial. Three lawyers have accused Charles M. Manson's attorney of trying to "dump" three women codefendants to help Manson's case.

Manson, the shaggy-haired clan leader accused of ordering the women to kill Miss Tate and six others, joined the attack Monday on his own attorney, Irving Kanarek.

"I object to my attorney," Manson told the judge. "He's not speaking for me."

The complaints about Kanarek came during his sixth day of cross-examination of the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, who Monday was granted immunity from prosecution. He hammered away at details of the night a year ago when the beautiful actress and four others were slain at her Bel Air mansion.

Other attorneys said the testimony was repetitious. They objected particularly to accounts of the roles of two women defendants in the killings.

Paul Fitzgerald objected successfully six times to Kanarek's questions concerning his client, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and vehemently opposed introduction into evidence of a picture of the bloody body of one victim.

"The picture is prejudicial and inflammatory," Fitzgerald said. The judge ruled the picture would not be admitted until Kanarek laid a proper foundation with questioning. Kanarek dropped the subject.

Daye Shinn, representing Susan Atkins, 21, objected to a question eliciting testimony about a conversation Mrs. Kasabian said she had with Miss Atkins.

Later, Ronald Hughes, attorney for Leslie Van Houten, 20, told newsmen he felt Kanarek was hurting the defense case with his cross-examination.

"He's turned her from an incredible witness into a credible witness," said Hughes. "He's hurting us by getting into the crime. I keep asking him to stop .... He sort of ignores me."

Kanarek told newsmen: "In this type of case a lawyer can represent only one litigant. Conflicts arise. An answer to a question may hurt one party and help another. Reasonable minds can differ at a trial."

Fitzgerald said the original defense plan was to proceed on the theory that all four defendants are innocent and dependent upon one another in their defense. Kanarek has "slipped from the fold," he said. Fitzgerald added that Kanrek possibly was doing a good job for his client but damaging the case of the women.

The squabble among attorneys came after the judge granted a defense request that Mrs. Kasabian be granted her promised immunity from prosecution. The defense attorneys said they felt once the grant was final she could recant her testimony if she wished without fear of retribution.

State GOP 'Harmony' Meet Off

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has canceled, for the time being at least, a meeting of Republican candidates which apparently was designed to heal party wounds.

No reason was given the cancellation of the Aug. 19 meeting. A source in Republican headquarters said it might be rescheduled later.

The meeting was to have included Treasurer John D. Herbert and state Sen. Robin T. Turner, who have been disowned by the GOP organization for having accepted campaign contributions from a money-finding firm involved in some question able loans from the state treasury.

Herbert and Turner are the Republican nominees for attorney general and treasurer, respectively.

There was speculation that Rhodes called the meeting in an attempt to heal wounds created by the loans scandal and the May 5 primary.

Rhodes reportedly was unhappy with the handling of events that left Herbert and Turner without a party.

2 Guerrilla Groups Reject Truce Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The only two Palestinian guerrilla organizations that supported Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's acceptance of the Middle East cease-fire withdrew their support Monday night, and a spokesman said they would join the other commandos' campaign to sabotage the truce.

Dr. Issam Saratawi, head of the Action Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, said his group and the Arab Palestine Organiztion thought Nasser would use the cease-fire only as a tactic to advance the Arab war effort against Israel.

"But after the cease-fire went into effect," Saratawai said, "we realized that our conclusion was wrong."

Two small guerrilla groups fell into line behind the major commando outfits after fighting in Jordan during the past week between pro and anti-Nasser guerrillas in which three Arabs were killed and 19 wounded.

With guerrilla activity continuing unabated against Israel, the Palestine Armed Struggle Command said 12 commandos have been killed by Israeli troops since the Israeli-Jordanian-Egyptian cease-fire went into effect at midnight Friday.

A Jordanian officer said the cease-fire between Jordan nd Israel was violated twice Sunday, but both exchanges of fire between Israeli and Jordanian troops stemmed from clashes between Israeli soldiers and commandos from Jordan. Jordan in agreeing to the cease-fire said it could not be held responsible for the guerrillas.

In a television address, Jordanian Foreign Minister Anton Atallah said commando raids from his country do not violate the cease-fire. Jordan is committed not to fight, he said, but the commandos are "Palestinians fighting for the liberation of their country."

Officials had feared that funeral services Monday for Mrs. Ricks would spark more violence. But the two-hour service at New Hope Baptist Church was held without incident.

Some 500 mourners attending the service passed through an honor guard formed by members of the National Committee to Combat Facism, successor to the Black Panther Party here. Another 500 persons gathered outside the church.

Following graveside services at Fletcher Cemetery, the crowd was told Mrs. Ricks would not be buried Monday and the body was returned to the mortuary.

Funeral Director Paul Jones said the family had asked the burial be delayed to enable some out - of - town relatives to come to Lima to view the body. Burial was rescheduled for Wednesday, with no further services planned.

Police thwarted plans by some blacks to march from the cemetery to the Municipal Building downtown for a memorial service. They told the group the mayor had banned parades or rallies involving more than three persons.

The decision to circulate petitions calling for the ouster of the two policemen involved in the Ricks shooting was reached at a meeting in the Negro section Monday night.

Plans to boycott some local businesses also were discussed.

Two white local broadcast newsmen attended the meeting for about 45 minutes before being escorted out. One of them, Skip Essex of WCIT, radio, was treated at St. Rita hospital for an injury he said he received when someone punched him in the jaw.

SMOKIN' COBS — Sparks from welders' equipment was blamed as the cause of a fire in a corn cob bin at Pickaway Grain shortly before 10 Tuesday morning. Circleville Fire Department responded to the fire with both the pumper and ladder truck to extinguish the blaze in the 35 to 40-foot high bin. Workers emptied the cobs into trucks which they dumped in a nearby field for the firemen to douse with water. The welders were making repairs on the huge concrete storage towers near the bin. Sparks apparently landed in the cobs, starting the blaze.

Rift Reported Developing Among Tate Case Lawyers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rift appears to be developing in the defense team in the Sharon Tate murder trial. Three lawyers have accused Charles M. Manson's attorney of trying to "dump" three women codefendants to help Manson's case.

Manson, the shaggy-haired clan leader accused of ordering the women to kill Miss Tate and six others, joined the attack Monday on his own attorney, Irving Kanarek.

"I object to my attorney," Manson told the judge. "He's not speaking for me."

The complaints about Kanarek came during his sixth day of cross-examination of the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, who Monday was granted immunity from prosecution. He hammered away at details of the night a year ago when the beautiful actress and four others were slain at her Bel Air mansion.

Other attorneys said the testimony was repetitious. They objected particularly to accounts of the roles of two women defendants in the killings.

Paul Fitzgerald objected successfully six times to Kanarek's questions concerning his client, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and vehemently opposed introduction into evidence of a picture of the bloody body of one victim.

"The picture is prejudicial and inflammatory," Fitzgerald said. The judge ruled the picture would not be admitted until Kanarek laid a proper foundation with questioning. Kanarek dropped the subject.

Daye Shinn, representing Susan Atkins, 21, objected to a question eliciting testimony about a conversation Mrs. Kasabian said she had with Miss Atkins.

Later, Ronald Hughes, attorney for Leslie Van Houten, 20, told newsmen he felt Kanarek was hurting the defense case with his cross-examination.

"He's turned her from an incredible witness into a credible witness," said Hughes. "He's hurting us by getting into the crime. I keep asking him to stop . . . . He sort of ignores me."

Kanarek told newsmen: "In this type of case a lawyer can represent only one litigant. Conflicts arise. An answer to a question may hurt one party and help another. Reasonable minds can differ at a trial."

Fitzgerald said the original defense plan was to proceed on the theory that all four defendants are innocent and dependent upon one another in their defense. Kanarek has "slipped from the fold," he said. Fitzgerald added that Kanrek possibly was doing a good job for his client but damaging the case of the women.

The squabble among attorneys came after the judge granted a defense request that Mrs. Kasabian be granted her promised immunity from prosecution. The defense attorneys said they felt once the grant was final she could recant her testimony if she wished without fear of retribution.

State GOP 'Harmony' Meet Off

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has canceled, for the time being at least, a meeting of Republican candidates which apparently was designed to heal party wounds.

No reason was given the cancellation of the Aug. 19 meeting. A source in Republican headquarters said it might be rescheduled later.

The meeting was to have included Treasurer John D. Herbert and state Sen. Robin T. Turner, who have been disowned by the GOP organization for having accepted campaign contributions from a money-finding firm involved in some question able loans from the state treasury.

Herbert and Turner are the Republican nominees for attorney general and treasurer, respectively.

There was speculation that Rhodes called the meeting in an attempt to heal wounds created by the loans scandal and the May 5 primary.

Rhodes reportedly was unhappy with the handling of events that left Herbert and Turner without a party.

2 Guerrilla Groups Reject Truce Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The only two Palestinian guerrilla organizations that supported Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's acceptance of the Middle East cease-fire withdrew their support Monday night, and a spokesman said they would join the other commandos' campaign to sabotage the truce.

Dr. Issam Saratawi, head of the Action Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, said his group and the Arab Palestine Organiztion thought Nasser would use the cease-fire only as a tactic to advance the Arab war effort against Israel.

"But after the cease-fire went into effect," Saratawai said, "we realized that our conclusion was wrong."

Two small guerrilla groups fell into line behind the major commando outfits after fighting in Jordan during the past week between pro and anti-Nasser guerrillas in which three Arabs were killed and 19 wounded.

With guerrilla activity continuing unabated against Israel, the Palestine Armed Struggle Command said 12 commandos have been killed by Israeli troops since the Israeli-Jordanian-Egyptian cease-fire went into effect at midnight Friday.

A Jordanian officer said the cease-fire between Jordan nd Israel was violated twice Sunday, but both exchanges of fire between Israeli and Jordanian troops stemmed from clashes between Israeli soldiers and commandos from Jordan. Jordan in agreeing to the cease-fire said it could not be held responsible for the guerrillas.

In a television address, Jordanian Foreign Minister Anton Atallah said commando raids from his country do not violate the cease-fire. Jordan is committed not to fight, he said, but the commandos are "Palestinians fighting for the liberation of their country."

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

His Kisses Aren't Up To Standards

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't solve myself and I don't want to ask anyone else for fear of appearing foolish. I don't know how to kiss. I am a 28-year-old normal male. I'm fairly good looking, clean, have a good job, a late model car, sharp clothes, and I have no trouble getting dates. But when it comes to kissing, I must be doing something wrong because all I get is complaints.

It's gotten to the point where I just skip the kissing and go on to the next step, but I find most girls don't like this.

Can you help me? They say, "practice makes perfect," but I don't get a chance to practice because after I kiss a girl once she doesn't want to kiss me again.

WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: Most people learn how to kiss without lessons, but you may need a few. You can't learn to kiss alone—you'll need a girl, so find one you'd like to kiss, and kiss her at the appropriate time. If she complains, ask her what was wrong with the kiss. There are a variety of "bum" kisses. Too "wet," to dry, to hard, not hard enough, too passionate, not passionate enough, too prolonged, too brief.) If the girl likes you, she won't mind giving you a few pointers to improve your technique. If she doesn't like you that much—find another girl.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is constantly asking whomever he happens to be with to "lend" him a couple of dollars, or a "five." His excuse is that he has to cash a check, and he hasn't anything less than a twenty or a fifty on him. No one doubts him, either, as ths man is very well-to-do. (He also never picks up a check when he is by far the one in the crowd who is best able to treat everybody, but that's another problem.)

Abby, this man never makes an effort to repay any of these "emergency" loans, and I for one am fed up with it.

Now why would a man who is worth a fortune want to chisel in this manner? And if you can think of a good way to get my money back, I'd appreciate it.

FED UP

DEAR FED: Don't look for any deep psychological reasons for your friend's behavior. He's just cheap. And the best way I know to get something one has coming to him is to ask for it.

DEAR ABBY: When a girl asks a boy to a "girl-ask-boy" party, is the girl supposed to provide the transportation? We are not old enough to drive, any of us kids, so one of our parents will have to take us and call for us. But whose parents?

UNDER AGE IN WATERLOO

DEAR UNDER AGE: When a girl asks a boy to a party, she's asking him to "escort" her only. The "escort" should provide the transportation. If for some reason, he can't manage it, the girl's parents are next in line.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my gripe in your column? The offenders probably don't even know they are guilty, and it might wake them up.

Whenever I drop a note to someone, asking for a recipe, an address, or some other bit of information which I want, I always enclose a stamped, addressed envelope as a convenience to that person. Also, since I'm the one who is asking for the favor, why should the person of whom I'm asking it take his time and effort to accomodate me and provide the stamp besides?

MARGE

DEAR MARGE: You are a woman after my own heart!

Cincy U.S. Court Ringed With Guards

CINCINNATI (AP) — With eight armed guards keeping watch on the courtroom, the defendant walked up to the judge and changed his plea to guilty on an attempted bank robbery charge.

The guards had been stationed in the U. S. District Courtroom Monday as a precautionary measure for the scheduled trial of Enoch Morgan, 20, of Cincinnati.

U. S. Marshal Donald Horn said that extra security steps were taken mainly because police said Morgan tried to escape recently from the Hamilton County Jail. Horn said that "as a rule" only one armed guard stands in the courtroom.

Wearing handcuffs and leg irons, Morgan was led to the courtroom and then the handcuffs were taken off. The jury was purposely detained and never did end up seeing the defendant because he changed his plea.

Judge David Porter ordered a pre-sentence probation investigation of Morgan who is also charged in a financial institution robbery on Feb. 12.

Horn said that the tight security was planned before a judge and three other persons were fatally wounded Friday in San Rafael, Calif., when an armed man raided the courtroom.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Daniel Boone," who over the years appeared to have been primarily responsible for winning the American Revolution —with a little help from his friends— has been retired by NBC. But his cause will be carried on next season by ABC's "Young Rebels."

The action series set in 1777 is hung on three young people who are supposed to be members of a secret American patriotic group called "The Yankee Doodle Society." Its television genealogy apparently includes "Mod Squad" and "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

Since ABC has placed the series in an early Sunday evening time period, euphemistically referred to as a "family viewing hour" the series obviously is aimed at the under-18 audience. Certainly it is youth-oriented in cast and viewpoint.

Rick Ely, the youthful blond actor who is one of its three leads, explained that while some liberties have been taken with historical fact in the interest of dramatic impact, "our scripts are more concerned with the philosophy of the revolution and the moral wrongs that were committed."

Ely, who has had little television exposure, will play a young Pennsylvanian, Jerry Larkin, who is believed to be a lazy, ne'er-do-well, but is really the leader of the underground patriots and, under a secret commission from General Lafayette himself, a captain in the Continental Army.

In what has become almost standard casting practice since "Mod Squad" and "Mission: Impossible," there is another young patriot—an apothecary whose knowledge of science permits him to pull off such coups as exploding powder kegs with electricity discovered only a few years before by Benjamin Franklin—and another who is a blacksmith and former slave.

"He bought his freedom, but we don't know exactly how," explained Ely. Generally, though, there is a relationship between the young people and the young people now, although we don't hammer away on it. I think that the years between 15 and 25 are a waking-up period; people over 25 are more likely to simmer down. When you are young, you are more likely to want to speak up or do something about injustices and inequities."

Ely, who looks like a teenager, is old enough to be divorced and the father of a 6-year-old daughter. A native of Indiana, Rick has had some stage experience. Although he has not appeared professionally as a single he has been signed by a record company and his first single will be released at about the same time that "The Young Rebels" is launched opposite "Lassie" and "The Disney Hour" in mid-September.

"There is no connection between the two," said Ely, as though he really believed it.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

His Kisses Aren't Up To Standards

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't solve myself and I don't want to ask anyone else for fear of appearing foolish. I don't know how to kiss. I am a 28-year-old normal male. I'm fairly good looking, clean, have a good job, a late model car, sharp clothes, and I have no trouble getting dates. But when it comes to kissing, I must be doing something wrong because all I get is complaints.

It's gotten to the point where I just skip the kissing and go on to the next step, but I find most girls don't like this.

Can you help me? They say, "practice makes perfect," but I don't get a chance to practice because after I kiss a girl once she doesn't want to kiss me again.

WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: Most people learn how to kiss without lessons, but you may need a few. You can't learn to kiss alone—you'll need a girl, so find one you'd like to kiss, and kiss her at the appropriate time. If she complains, ask her what was wrong with the kiss. There are a variety of "bum" kisses. Too "wet," to dry, to hard, not hard enough, too passionate, not passionate enough, too prolonged, too brief.) If the girl likes you, she won't mind giving you a few pointers to improve your technique. If she doesn't like you that much—find another girl.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is constantly asking whomever he happens to be with to "lend" him a couple of dollars, or a "five." His excuse is that he has to cash a check, and he hasn't anything less than a twenty or a fifty on him. No one doubts him, either, as ths man is very well-to-do. (He also never picks up a check when he is by far the one in the crowd who is best able to treat everybody, but that's another problem.)

Abby, this man never makes an effort to repay any of these "emergency" loans, and I for one am fed up with it.

Now why would a man who is worth a fortune want to chisel in this manner? And if you can think of a good way to get my money back, I'd appreciate it.

FED UP

DEAR FED: Don't look for any deep psychological reasons for your friend's behavior. He's just cheap. And the best way I know to get something one has coming to him is to ask for it.

DEAR ABBY: When a girl asks a boy to a "girl-ask-boy" party, is the girl supposed to provide the transportation? We are not old enough to drive, any of us kids, so one of our parents will have to take us and call for us. But whose parents?

UNDER AGE IN WATERLOO

DEAR UNDER AGE: When a girl asks a boy to a party, she's asking him to "escort" her only. The "escort" should provide the transportation. If for some reason, he can't manage it, the girl's parents are next in line.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my gripe in your column? The offenders probably don't even know they are guilty, and it might wake them up.

Whenever I drop a note to someone, asking for a recipe, an address, or some other bit of information which I want, I always enclose a stamped, addressed envelope as a convenience to that person. Also, since I'm the one who is asking for the favor, why should the person of whom I'm asking it take his time and effort to accomodate me and provide the stamp besides?

MARGE

DEAR MARGE: You are a woman after my own heart!

Cincy U.S. Court Ringed With Guards

CINCINNATI (AP) — With eight armed guards keeping watch on the courtroom, the defendant walked up to the judge and changed his plea to guilty on an attempted bank robbery charge.

The guards had been stationed in the U. S. District Courtroom Monday as a precautionary measure for the scheduled trial of Enoch Morgan, 20, of Cincinnati.

U. S. Marshal Donald Horn said that extra security steps were taken mainly because police said Morgan tried to escape recently from the Hamilton County Jail. Horn said that "as a rule" only one armed guard stands in the courtroom.

Wearing handcuffs and leg irons, Morgan was led to the courtroom and then the handcuffs were taken off. The jury was purposely detained and never did end up seeing the defendant because he changed his plea.

Judge David Porter ordered a pre-sentence probation investigation of Morgan who is also charged in a financial institution robbery on Feb. 12.

Horn said that the tight security was planned before a judge and three other persons were fatally wounded Friday in San Rafael, Calif., when an armed man raided the courtroom.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent criticism of the foods we eat are probably only a prelude of things to come. Man is increasingly experimenting with what goes into his stomach, and if that cavity doesn't always rebel the mind sometimes does.

Cereals, additives and preservatives have been attacked recently by the Federal Drug Administration, "Nader's Raiders," and ordinary citizens. And while little has been proven, suspicions have been aroused permanently.

Now look at the potential for controversy that lies ahead because man has not been content with or has been unable to prepare and distribute, his food in its natural state.

There are:

—30 preservatives to keep food fresh.

—28 antioxidants to retard breakdown of fats and oils—to keep food from becoming rancid.

—44 sequestrants to separate minute elements which might interfere with food processing.

—31 stabilizers to keep food at uniform, smooth texture.

—85 surfactants, or wetting agents, which allow two surfaces of food ingredients to come together in a mixture.

That's only the beginning. Food science is one of the most rapidly growing disciplines, forced ahead by knowledge of 10,000 deaths a day from malnutrition, and spurred by the potential for making foods tastier or more nutritious or more profitable.

More than 2,000 of the world's top-ranked food and nutrition experts, now in Washington for the Third International Congress of Food and Science and Technology, are talking about strange possibilities for the future.

—The use of ocean plants, including algae, seaweed, plankton and tiny sea vegetables—whale food, you might say. Such foods are considered the most promising raw materials not now used by humans.

—The production of fish protein concentrates, or proteins from other sources such as plant leaves and micro-organism that have been fed on petroleum products.

—Meat analogs, or products that resemble meat in flavor, appearance and texture. Such foods already are being made, mainly from soybeans.

—Conversion of cellulose starch into food, and the conversion of waste products—animal blood, for example—into protein-rich foods.

—Development of chemicals to help prevent losses in the growing, processing and preserving of foods. Insects, for example, are said to destroy $4 billion of the world's crops annually.

Quite understandably, the food experts have decided on "The Science of Survival" as the theme of their meeting, because perpetuation of the species, much of which is in trouble, is the loftiest goal of their calling.

According to the food congress, 300 million children in less developed nations will reach maturity retarded because of insufficiency of diet during early school years.

To work toward improving so horrid a record is a noble thing, but some critics will be provided with plenty of food for adverse criticism, rightly or wrongly, by figures that show the noblest goal is only one of many.

The critics, that is, will be asking if it is necessary for Americans to swallow three pounds of additives a year or increase consumption of artificial sweeteners from 250,000 pounds in 1955 to 21 million pounds in 1969.

Do such practices, they ask, really help the species to survive. Or do they endanger it?

Congress Flirts With Idea Of Voting Itself TV Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to television and politics, Federal Communications Commissoner Nicholas Johnson told Congress last week, "that little screen is the sum total of the ball game."

Congress is beginning to believe it.

Already on the verge of passing a bill to restrict the use of television in campaigns, Congress is flirting with the idea of voting itself free air time to express its views.

Politicians also have peppered the FCC with requests for free air time or rule changes allowing them to buy time to boost their pet ideas, so far to little avail.

Even the television-wary House of Representatives has voted to follow the years-old Senate practice of broadcasting some committee hearings.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott even proposed this week that his chamber allow broadcast coverage of a few special floor debates each year.

The politicians' concern represents an increasing feeling that television focuses attention on the president at the expense of congressmen. Some legislators also feel television makes election winners out of obscure but rich and photogenic office-seekers.

Both effects are disturbing to some incumbent members of Congress.

Various attempts have been made to change the rules of the tele-political "ball game."

—The House hopes to take up late this week its version of a Senate-passed bill that would limit campaign television expenditures. It's passage also would clear the way for free presidential television debates like the Kennedy-Nixon meetings of 1960, and would require broadcasters to sell time to politicians at their lowest commercial rates. Since the measure is thought to favor incumbents its chances for passage are rated good.

—The Senate communications subcommittee is considering a proposal by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to require broadcasters to give four prime-time segments each year to the House, Senate and judiciary to express their views. Fulbright said the President's traditional access to the airways threatened to upset the balance of powers between the branches of government. His measure was opposed by networks, broadcasters, Republicans, and the FCC. But subcommittee chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., extracted promises from the networks to consider voluntarily giving Congress some time as an experiment to see if the 535 members of Congress could agree on ways to use it.

Pornography Law Repeal To Be Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography has outlined tentative recommendations calling for repeal of all laws prohibiting adult Americans from purchasing or possessing pornographic films, books and other material.

But the commission said in a preliminary report that local, state and federal laws should protect children from exposure to smut, and that adults should be protected from unsolicited exposure through public displays or unsolicited mail advertisements.

"The commission does not believe, however," says the draft report, "that there is any warrant for the continuation of government controls upon what sexual materials may be made available to adults who wish to read or review such materials."

The recommendations obtained by the Associated Press have not been approved by the 18-member commission which reportedly will meet most of this week before issuing its final report, scheduled for release at the end of August.

The recommendations cover pornographic materials, but not live sex shows. They follow the lead of Denmark which lifted all restrictions against pornography for adults—but not children—last year.

Laws against what American adults can watch or buy are unwarranted, says the draft report, because its studies have found no evidence that pornography causes "crime, juvenile delinquency, other antisocial conduct, sexual or nonsexual deviancy, character disorders or significant emotional disturbances."

Even though there is no finding that pornography is harmful to children, it says, laws against youngsters' exposure to it are justified by the fact that many parents responsible for their welfare—rightly or wrongly—believe it might be harmful to them.

According to our astronomical calendar this date should mark the end of the so-called "Dog Days." So — if you have a pet pooch — maybe you should do something nice for him like, say, give him an extra bone to bury?

Ancients believed that the hot weather at this time was due to Sirius (the Dog Star). Now, of course, no one takes that siriously.

This also happens to be the months when there are about as many "shooting stars" in the sky as on TV Western shows.

There's no truth to that old belief that one can hear corn grow, writes an expert on agricultural matters. Maybe so, but you sure can hear it being eaten — on the cob, that is.

There are more than 40 species of sharks in the Caribbean Sea — nature item. No place to take swimming lessons!

A mosquitoe's flying range, we've just learned, is only a quarter-mile wide. Could be — but it sure doesn't act neighborly!

Crab grass actually got its name from the shape the pestiferous plant assumes. Up to now we thought the name came from remarks made by suburbanites when they find the weed in their lawns.

The late Jim Jeffries, long-time heavyweight champ, had a father who loved farming and took it as a personal affront that the growing city of Los Angeles pressed closer and closer to his acreage. Finally he had to begin selling snippets of his land to builders who kept raising their offers week after week—and first thing you know, there wasn't enough left to keep the farm running at a profit. "There goes the last piece," he exclaimed in a rage one morning. "The farm's gone. You kids will have to find work somewhere else. All we've got left in this world is the house, the barn, six orange groves, and two million dollars in the bank."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A small spot of baldness appears on my head and then, after about six weeks, begins to fill in again. Does this mean that I will be bald when I am an adult?

Mr. S.W., Maine

Dear W.: I know from the rest of your letter that you are 14 and that you are worried about this to a greater degree than you need to be. You are describing a condition known as alopecia (baldness) areata. For unexplained reasons, some young people and even adults suddenly find that an area about the size of a half dollar will become totally bald. This can happen without any recent illness or injury or use of drugs. Whether you do anything about it or not, soon you will find that delicate and fuzzy wisps of hair will appear and, as you have noticed, will be followed by a normal regrowth of hair.

The occasional appearance of such a small area of baldness does not mean that eventually you will become bald. I do think that you ought to have a general examination just to be sure that there are no other reasons for this annoying but not serious condition.

How serious is bleeding from the rectum?

Mr. C.R.W., South Carolina

Dear Mr. W.: The most serious aspect of your problem is your neglect of this condition. "Hoping" that it will disappear is not classed as good medical practice.

Certainly there are very serious causes for bleeding from the rectum. A description of these would serve only to terrify you more. A saner attitude would be to seek the cause by some of the excellent methods which are now available rather than play the guessing game.

X-ray studies and direct examination through a proctoscope can almost always pinpoint the area of bleeding and lead to the removal of its cause. The severe emotional reaction to bleeding keeps many people, because of terror, from doing the simple, wise thing; namely to see their doctor.

Can pregnancy occur after the age of 50?

Mrs. M.H.S., New Mexico

Dear Mrs. S.: There are reported cases of pregnancy after the age of 50 and even after the age of 60. I do not know how accurate these case reports are, but they do make good newspaper copy.

Generally, it is accepted that the menopause, or change of life represents the end of a woman's reproductive life. If in an unusual situation, menstruation still occurs after 50, then pregnancy is still a possibility.

At an early age, children must be taught that with their rights come responsibilities.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 11, the 223rd day of 1970. There are 142 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, a formal peace announcement in Indochina ended more than seven years of fighting between the French and the Vietminh.

On this date:

In 1857, the first Atlantic cable broke after 335 miles had been laid. Work halted until the next year.

In 1900, Victor Emmanuel became king of Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover accepted the Republican Nomination for president.

In 1935, Nazi storm troopers staged mass demonstrations against Jews in Germany.

In 1945, World War II was coming to an end as the Allies told Japan its surrender offer was satisfactory.

In 1963, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson made a strong appeal for racial integration, in a speech in Los Angeles.

Ten years ago: After months of failure by the U.S., a package of scientific instruments was recovered from the Pacific after beig shot into space-orbit.

Five years ago: Six days of rioting and looting began in the Negro Watts section of Los Angeles. Thirty-four persons were killed before it was over.

One year ago: The U.S. Senate voted unanimously for tighter controls over the deployment of gas and germ warfare weapons.

Lesotho, in southern Africa, is one of the world's poorest nations. But in its first diamond mine, opened since the former Basutoand became independent in 1966, several 100-carat diamonds have been found and one, the "Lesotho Brown," weighed 601.25 carats.

A Tale Of Two Islands

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

"There are no islands any more," said Edna St. Vincent Millay in a famous anti-isolationist poem of World War II. She should have lived to apply her reasoning to two islands at the ends of the American continent — Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay and Ellis in New York harbor.

Alcatraz, at the moment, is the more troublesome. It was seized some time ago by the Indians, the excuse being that, as deserted territory, it had reverted by some obscure right to its original owners, the aborigines. One trouble with the Indians' thinking is that Alcatraz cannot be made self-supporting. Even the soil that covers the rocks of the old prison island had to be imported from the mainland. After making a headline splash with their original seizure of the place some of the Indians gave up on it. But a hard core of squatters still lingers on, and Robert Robertson, who directs the National Council on Indian Opportunity, has not been able to persuade the last-ditchers that the island will never have any "high density" use.

Secretary of the Interior Hickel has asked that Alcatraz be pulled out of the "competitive bid" category of excess government property and put into a Golden Circle of parks ringing the San Francisco Bay area. Sailors have requested that the old navigational aids be restored to the island; they get poor security from the temporary buoys that have replaced the old lights and fog signals. As a park, Alcatraz could be given an Indian flavor; the Red Man could install exhibitions to tell his story. Nothing can be done constructively, however, until the Indians give up their intransigent attitude.

At the other end of the country, something useful could be made of Ellis Island, the former "gateway to the New World," without dispossessing anybody. The other day Dr. Thomas Matthew, on behalf of the black self-help group called NEGRO (National Economic Growth and Reconstruction Organization), made his application to the U.S. Department of the Interior and the National Park Service for a twenty-year revocable permit to use the island for "dual but mutually supportive purposes."

One: he wants to create a memorial to the immigration of the past when the island was the symbol of hope for all the dispossessed of Europe. Two: he has plans for turning the island into a rehabilitative community which will draw its population from chronic welfare recipients, drug addicts, chronic alcoholics and former prisoners.

The National Park Service has done its best to maintain Ellis Island as a monument, but it hasn't had the resources to make of it a vibrant memory of the melting pot concept of American society. Using his own funds from NEGRO, Dr. Matthew would restore and maintain the main building as the Ellis Island Immigration Museum. The historical societies would be asked to create exhibitions which would allow tourists to retrace their ancestors' steps from the Old World to the New. There would be eating and lounge facilities, and transportation would be provided both from Manhattan and New Jersey.

The remainder of the island would become a self-supporting community for "new immigrants" who are seeking re-entry into American life. Dr. Matthew's NEGRO already operates a chemical plant, a textile company, a paint manufacturing company, a Los Angeles bus line and some Bronx apartment buildings. Some offshoots of the NEGRO subsidiaries would be set up on the island, staffed by welfare recipients who really desire to get off relief and by drug addicts who genuinely want to kick the habit. They would live on the island.

"This benevolent isolation," says Dr. Matthew, "will make possible the rehabilitation that NEGRO's complex sociological and economic programs provide."

It's a grand concept as Dr. Matthew has outlined it, and it could be carried out without having to go either to Congress or to private charity to get it moving. Dr. Matthew considers public welfarism to be the modern counterpart of the old plantation system, which gave black people "cradle-to-grave" support under conditions that were certainly not conducive to self-respect. The "new Ellis Island" would be a symbol of rescue from welfarism as Alcatraz under the Indians could never hope to be.

Hurricanes are virtually non-existent in the South Atlantic Ocean, meteorologists say, probably because the comparatively cold water of this region inhibits formation of the big storms.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Monday, August 3, in a follow-up move to curb the flow of unsolicited pornographic materials through the mails, the House of Representatives passed a bill which I co-sponsored, which would prohibit the dissemination of unsolicited salacious advertisements.

This legislation lists an objective group of expressions, both verbal and pictorial, to define the term salacious in a legal context and provides for the destruction, on court order, of copies of a salacious advertisement recovered from the possession of a person who has been convicted of a violation of this proposed law. The penalties for violation are high, 5 years and-or $50,000 for a first offense and 10 years and-or $100,000 for subsequent offenses. The bill clearly states that these provisions apply only to that material which has not been requested by the addressee.

This bill, together with a bill passed in April to exclude from the mails pornography offered for sale to minors under the age of 17, could be instrumental in the move to curb the flow of unsolicited pornographic material through the mails. I am a strong proponent of the fight against pornography. I have introduced legislation and testified before various committees in support of measures designated to eliminate this problem. Judging from the volume of mail I have received on this subject, stringent legislation to prohibit mass distribution of this type of literature is welcome by those who inadvertently receive such material. I believe this legislation is a giant step forward in the effort to prevent the receipt of sex-oriented mail into the home or place of business.

On Monday, August 3, the House of Representatives passed the Environmental Education Act, a bill designed to promote community education on the subject of man's relationship to his environment.

The educational program will be focused primarily on community education at the adult level, in an effort to alert officials, business and industrial leaders, and citizens to their responsibilities to the environment, and to generate initiative and support for community planning programs in such areas as pollution, resource allocation, and urban and rural planning.

The bill provides for grants to institutions of higher education, local educational agencies, and public and private organizatons for research and training programs on environmental quality and ecology. The grant authority is flexible to include public service personnel: community, business, and industrial leaders and employees; and government employees at all levels, especially local government. Grants may also be made for community education programs on the environment.

On Wednesday, August 5, the House passed the Agricultural Act of 1970. This bill establishes an annual ceiling of $55,000 per crop on payments to producers of upland cotton, wheat, and feed grains. This proposal will reduce nationwide subsidy payments by a total of $58.3 million, without reducing payments to small farmers. The limitation includes all payments made for price support, set-aside, diversion, and public access.

The results of my recent questionnaire indicate that my constituents are overwhelmingly in favor of gradually eliminating farm subsidy payments. This legislation is an initial step in the direction of a free market. It suspends quotas and controls for wheat and cotton, and it establishes a set-aside system that should help provide farmers with greater flexibility in the management of their farms.

The conference report on the Postal Reform Bill was adopted by the House on Thursday of this week.

The compromise measure retains the 8 per cent pay increase for postal workers. It provides for the establishment of a United States Postal Service, independent of government supervision. The Postal Service will be headed by a Board of Governors, who will name the Postmaster General.

The new postal system will also create an independent Postal Rate Commission composed of five Presidential appointees, for 6 year terms. Their appointments will not be subject to Senate confirmation. Changes in postal rates will be made only by the postal service. The Rate Commission decisions on rates and mail classificatons can be modified only by unanimous written action of the Board of Governors.

Appropriations to help finance the new system will be continued on a diminishing level until the Postal Service determines its future operating needs. The ultimate goal of the new Postal System is to establish in independent corporation which is entirely self-sufficient.

During the past fiscal year, the FBI collected $345,832,583 in fines, savings and recoveries from their investigations. This amounts to $1.57 for every dollar appropriated for the FBI.

According to the Defense Department, Vietnam war costs for fiscal 1971 have been reduced by approximately one-half from the peak of $29 billion. Both American casualties and troop levels are now at their lowest point since the end of 1969.

Median family income in the U.S. rose to $9,400 in 1969, according to the Department of Commerce. This amounts to a 4 per cent gain after inflation is allowed for. The number of "poor" people in the U.S. declined 1.1 million during the year.

Of the 3.5 billion people on earth, all but 36 million of them have received foreign aid from the U. S. The U. S. National Debt is -370 billion, while that of the rest of the world combined is $304 billion.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent criticism of the foods we eat are probably only a prelude of things to come. Man is increasingly experimenting with what goes into his stomach, and if that cavity doesn't always rebel the mind sometimes does.

Cereals, additives and preservatives have been attacked recently by the Federal Drug Administration, "Nader's Raiders," and ordinary citizens. And while little has been proven, suspicions have been aroused permanently.

Now look at the potential for controversy that lies ahead because man has not been content with or has been unable to prepare and distribute, his food in its natural state.

There are:

—30 preservatives to keep food fresh.

—28 antioxidants to retard breakdown of fats and oils—to keep food from becoming rancid.

—44 sequestrants to separate minute elements which might interfere with food processing.

—31 stabilizers to keep food at uniform, smooth texture.

—85 surfactants, or wetting agents, which allow two surfaces of food ingredients to come together in a mixture.

That's only the beginning. Food science is one of the most rapidly growing disciplines, forced ahead by knowledge of 10,000 deaths a day from malnutrition, and spurred by the potential for making foods tastier or more nutritious or more profitable.

More than 2,000 of the world's top-ranked food and nutrition experts, now in Washington for the Third International Congress of Food and Science and Technology, are talking about strange possibilities for the future.

—The use of ocean plants, including algae, seaweed, plankton and tiny sea vegetables—whale food, you might say. Such foods are considered the most promising raw materials not now used by humans.

—The production of fish protein concentrates, or proteins from other sources such as plant leaves and micro-organism that have been fed on petroleum products.

—Meat analogs, or products that resemble meat in flavor, appearance and texture. Such foods already are being made, mainly from soybeans.

—Conversion of cellulose starch into food, and the conversion of waste products—animal blood, for example—into protein-rich foods.

—Development of chemicals to help prevent losses in the growing, processing and preserving of foods. Insects, for example, are said to destroy $4 billion of the world's crops annually.

Quite understandably, the food experts have decided on "The Science of Survival" as the theme of their meeting, because perpetuation of the species, much of which is in trouble, is the loftiest goal of their calling.

According to the food congress, 300 million children in less developed nations will reach maturity retarded because of insufficiency of diet during early school years.

To work toward improving so horrid a record is a noble thing, but some critics will be provided with plenty of food for adverse criticism, rightly or wrongly, by figures that show the noblest goal is only one of many.

The critics, that is, will be asking if it is necessary for Americans to swallow three pounds of additives a year or increase consumption of artificial sweeteners from 250,000 pounds in 1955 to 21 million pounds in 1969.

Do such practices, they ask, really help the species to survive. Or do they endanger it?

Congress Flirts With Idea Of Voting Itself TV Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to television and politics, Federal Communications Commissoner Nicholas Johnson told Congress last week, "that little screen is the sum total of the ball game."

Congress is beginning to believe it.

Already on the verge of passing a bill to restrict the use of television in campaigns, Congress is flirting with the idea of voting itself free air time to express its views.

Politicians also have peppered the FCC with requests for free air time or rule changes allowing them to buy time to boost their pet ideas, so far to little avail.

Even the television-wary House of Representatives has voted to follow the years-old Senate practice of broadcasting some committee hearings.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott even proposed this week that his chamber allow broadcast coverage of a few special floor debates each year.

The politicians' concern represents an increasing feeling that television focuses attention on the president at the expense of congressmen. Some legislators also feel television makes election winners out of obscure but rich and photogenic office-seekers.

Both effects are disturbing to some incumbent members of Congress.

Various attempts have been made to change the rules of the tele-political "ball game."

—The House hopes to take up late this week its version of a Senate-passed bill that would limit campaign television expenditures. It's passage also would clear the way for free presidential television debates like the Kennedy-Nixon meetings of 1960, and would require broadcasters to sell time to politicians at their lowest commercial rates. Since the measure is thought to favor incumbents its chances for passage are rated good.

—The Senate communications subcommittee is considering a proposal by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to require broadcasters to give four prime-time segments each year to the House, Senate and judiciary to express their views. Fulbright said the President's traditional access to the airways threatened to upset the balance of powers between the branches of government. His measure was opposed by networks, broadcasters, Republicans, and the FCC. But subcommittee chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., extracted promises from the networks to consider voluntarily giving Congress some time as an experiment to see if the 535 members of Congress could agree on ways to use it.

Pornography Law Repeal To Be Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography has outlined tentative recommendations calling for repeal of all laws prohibiting adult Americans from purchasing or possessing pornographic films, books and other material.

But the commission said in a preliminary report that local, state and federal laws should protect children from exposure to smut, and that adults should be protected from unsolicited exposure through public displays or unsolicited mail advertisements.

"The commission does not believe, however," says the draft report, "that there is any warrant for the continuation of government controls upon what sexual materials may be made available to adults who wish to read or review such materials."

The recommendations obtained by the Associated Press have not been approved by the 18-member commission which reportedly will meet most of this week before issuing its final report, scheduled for release at the end of August.

The recommendations cover pornographic materials, but not live sex shows. They follow the lead of Denmark which lifted all restrictions against pornography for adults—but not children —last year.

Laws against what American adults can watch or buy are unwarranted, says the draft report, because its studies have found no evidence that pornography causes "crime, juvenile delinquency, other antisocial conduct, sexual or nonsexual deviancy, character disorders or significant emotional disturbances."

Even though there is no finding that pornography is harmful to children, it says, laws against youngsters' exposure to it are justified by the fact that many parents responsible for their welfare—rightly or wrongly—believe it might be harmful to them.

According to our astronomical calendar this date should mark the end of the so-called "Dog Days." So — if you have a pet pooch — maybe you should do something nice for him like, say, give him an extra bone to bury?

Ancients believed that the hot weather at this time was due to Sirius (the Dog Star). Now, of course, no one takes that siriously.

This also happens to be the months when there are about as many "shooting stars" in the sky as on TV Western shows.

There's no truth to that old belief that one can hear corn grow, writes an expert on agricultural matters. Maybe so, but you sure can hear it being eaten — on the cob, that is.

There are more than 40 species of sharks in the Caribbean Sea — nature item. No place to take swimming lessons!

A mosquitoe's flying range, we've just learned, is only a quarter-mile wide. Could be — but it sure doesn't act neighborly!

Crab grass actually got its name from the shape the pestiferous plant assumes. Up to now we thought the name came from remarks made by suburbanites when they find the weed in their lawns.

Lesotho, in southern Africa, is one of the world's poorest nations. But in its first diamond mine, opened since the former Basutoand became independent in 1966, several 100-carat diamonds have been found and one, the "Lesotho Brown," weighed 601.25 carats.

A Tale Of Two Islands

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

"There are no islands any more," said Edna St. Vincent Millay in a famous anti-isolationist poem of World War II. She should have lived to apply her reasoning to two islands at the ends of the American continent — Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay and Ellis in New York harbor.

Alcatraz, at the moment, is the more troublesome. It was seized some time ago by the Indians, the excuse being that, as deserted territory, it had reverted by some obscure right to its original owners, the aborigines. One trouble with the Indians' thinking is that Alcatraz cannot be made self-supporting. Even the soil that covers the rocks of the old prison island had to be imported from the mainland. After making a headline splash with their original seizure of the place some of the Indians gave up on it. But a hard core of squatters still lingers on, and Robert Robertson, who directs the National Council on Indian Opportunity, has not been able to persuade the last-ditchers that the island will never have any "high density" use.

Secretary of the Interior Hickel has asked that Alcatraz be pulled out of the "competitive bid" category of excess government property and put into a Golden Circle of parks ringing the San Francisco Bay area. Sailors have requested that the old navigational aids be restored to the island; they get poor security from the temporary buoys that have replaced the old lights and fog signals. As a park, Alcatraz could be given an Indian flavor; the Red Man could install exhibitions to tell his story. Nothing can be done constructively, however, until the Indians give up their intransigent attitude.

At the other end of the country, something useful could be made of Ellis Island, the former "gateway to the New World," without dispossessing anybody. The other day Dr. Thomas Matthew, on behalf of the black self-help group called NEGRO (National Economic Growth and Reconstruction Organization), made his application to the U.S. Department of the Interior and the National Park Service for a twenty-year revocable permit to use the island for "dual but mutually supportive purposes."

One: he wants to create a memorial to the immigration of the past when the island was the symbol of hope for all the dispossessed of Europe. Two: he has plans for turning the island into a rehabilitative community which will draw its population from chronic welfare recipients, drug addicts, chronic alcoholics and former prisoners.

The National Park Service has done its best to maintain Ellis Island as a monument, but it hasn't had the resources to make of it a vibrant memory of the melting pot concept of American society. Using his own funds from NEGRO, Dr. Matthew would restore and maintain the main building as the Ellis Island Immigration Museum. The historical societies would be asked to create exhibitions which would allow tourists to retrace their ancestors' steps from the Old World to the New. There would be eating and lounge facilities, and transportation would be provided both from Manhattan and New Jersey.

The remainder of the island would become a self-supporting community for "new immigrants" who are seeking re-entry into American life. Dr. Matthew's NEGRO already operates a chemical plant, a textile company, a paint manufacturing company, a Los Angeles bus line and some Bronx apartment buildings. Some offshoots of the NEGRO subsidiaries would be set up on the island, staffed by welfare recipients who really desire to get off relief and by drug addicts who genuinely want to kick the habit. They would live on the island.

"This benevolent isolation," says Dr. Matthew, "will make possible the rehabilitation that NEGRO's complex sociological and economic programs provide."

It's a grand concept as Dr. Matthew has outlined it, and it could be carried out without having to go either to Congress or to private charity to get it moving. Dr. Matthew considers public welfarism to be the modern counterpart of the old plantation system, which gave black people "cradle-to-grave" support under conditions that were certainly not conducive to self-respect. The "new Ellis Island" would be a symbol of rescue from welfarism as Alcatraz under the Indians could never hope to be.

Hurricanes are virtually non-existent in the South Atlantic Ocean, meteorologists say, probably because the comparatively cold water of this region inhibits formation of the big storms.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Monday, August 3, in a follow-up move to curb the flow of unsolicited pornographic materials through the mails, the House of Representatives passed a bill which I co-sponsored, which would prohibit the dissemination of unsolicited salacious advertisements.

This legislation lists an objective group of expressions, both verbal and pictorial, to define the term salacious in a legal context and provides for the destruction, on court order, of copies of a salacious advertisement recovered from the possession of a person who has been convicted of a violation of this proposed law. The penalties for violation are high, 5 years and-or $50,000 for a first offense and 10 years and-or $100,000 for subsequent offenses. The bill clearly states that these provisions apply only to that material which has not been requested by the addressee.

This bill, together with a bill passed in April to exclude from the mails pornography offered for sale to minors under the age of 17, could be instrumental in the move to curb the flow of unsolicited pornographic material through the mails. I am a strong proponent of the fight against pornography. I have introduced legislation and testified before various committees in support of measures designated to eliminate this problem. Judging from the volume of mail I have received on this subject, stringent legislation to prohibit mass distribution of this type of literature is welcome by those who inadvertently receive such material. I believe this legislation is a giant step forward in the effort to prevent the receipt of sex-oriented mail into the home or place of business.

On Monday, August 3, the House of Representatives passed the Environmental Education Act, a bill designed to promote community education on the subject of man's relationship to his environment.

The educational program will be focused primarily on community education at the adult level, in an effort to alert officials, business and industrial leaders, and citizens to their responsibilities to the environment, and to generate initiative and support for community planning programs in such areas as pollution, resource allocation, and urban and rural planning.

The bill provides for grants to institutions of higher education, local educational agencies, and public and private organizatons for research and training programs on environmental quality and ecology. The grant authority is flexible to include public service personnel: community, business, and industrial leaders and employees; and government employees at all levels, especially local government. Grants may also be made for community education programs on the environment.

On Wednesday, August 5, the House passed the Agricultural Act of 1970. This bill establishes an annual ceiling of $55,000 per crop on payments to producers of upland cotton, wheat, and feed grains. This proposal will reduce nationwide subsidy payments by a total of $58.3 million, without reducing payments to small farmers. The limitation includes all payments made for price support, set-aside, diversion, and public access.

The results of my recent questionnaire indicate that my constituents are overwhelmingly in favor of gradually eliminating farm subsidy payments. This legislation is an initial step in the direction of a free market. It suspends quotas and controls for wheat and cotton, and it establishes a set-aside system that should help provide farmers with greater flexibility in the management of their farms.

The conference report on the Postal Reform Bill was adopted by the House on Thursday of this week.

The compromise measure retains the 8 per cent pay increase for postal workers. It provides for the establishment of a United States Postal Service, independent of government supervision. The Postal Service will be headed by a Board of Governors, who will name the Postmaster General.

The new postal system will also create an independent Postal Rate Commission composed of five Presidential appointees, for 6 year terms. Their appointments will not be subject to Senate confirmation. Changes in postal rates will be made only by the postal service. The Rate Commission decisions on rates and mail classificatons can be modified only by unanimous written action of the Board of Governors.

Appropriations to help finance the new system will be continued on a diminishing level until the Postal Service determines its future operating needs. The ultimate goal of the new Postal System is to establish in independent corporation which is entirely self-sufficient.

During the past fiscal year, the FBI collected $345,832,583 in fines, savings and recoveries from their investigations. This amounts to $1.57 for every dollar appropriated for the FBI.

According to the Defense Department, Vietnam war costs for fiscal 1971 have been reduced by approximately one-half from the peak of $29 billion. Both American casualties and troop levels are now at their lowest point since the end of 1969.

Median family income in the U.S. rose to $9,400 in 1969, according to the Department of Commerce. This amounts to a 4 per cent gain after inflation is allowed for. The number of "poor" people in the U.S. declined 1.1 million during the year.

Of the 3.5 billion people on earth, all but 36 million of them have received foreign aid from the U. S. The U. S. National Debt is -370 billion, while that of the rest of the world combined is $304 billion.

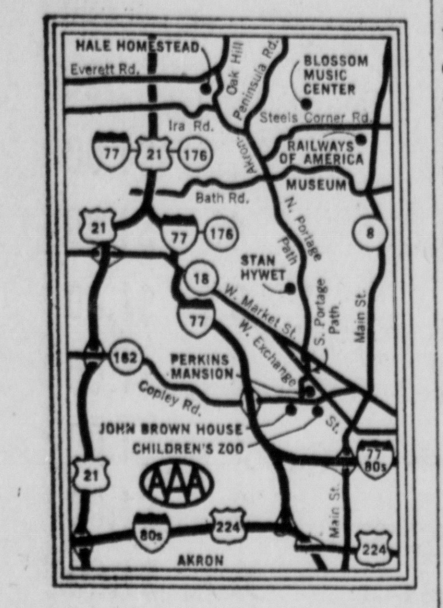
Let's Tour Ohio

Tour Of Akron Mansion, Music Center Are Tops

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by Columbus Auto Club Travel Department for the Herald.



A tour of Akron offers a variety of fine attractions, but two among them, Stan Hywett Hall and the Blossom Music Center, rate as exceptional.

Stan Hywett is the 65-room Tudor mansion built for over $2-million nearly 60 years ago for Frank Seiberling, founder of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. Lavish in every detail even by today's standards, the home has a 300-seat music room, 23 bedrooms, an indoor swimming pool, bowling alley and gymnasium. Furnishings, most of them antiques, are those selected by Seiberlng during repeated European visits.

Equally outstanding are the grounds, with gardens in bloom continuously from April through November. Hall and grounds are open 10 to 4:30 daily, except Sunday 1 to 5; closed Monday. Admission charge.

Stan Hywet also is the site for the annual Wonderful World of Ohio Mart, Oct. 2-4, featuring members of the Ohio Arts and Crafts Guild, demonstrating many crafts, including weaving, painting, candlemaking and glass blowing. A wide array of other displays and activities also are scheduled. Admission charge.

Blossom Music Center is in its third season of concerts. The summer home of the renowned Cleveland Symphony, programs have been expanded each year, and now include everything from the classics to Broadway, including young people's programs. The acoustically perfect pavillion seats 4600, with 10,000 more accommodated on the lawns.

Three other homes are of interest. The Jonathon Hale Homestead is the oldest brick home in the area, has a fine museum and is being continually improved. Open noon to 9, except Monday. Admission charge.

The Perkins Mansion was built by Col. Simon Perkins, son of Akron's founder, and is across the street from the John Brown House, Perkins' business partner, who lived there before his raid on Harper's Ferry during the Civil War. Both homes are considered museums, and are open 1 to 5, except Monday. Admission charge.

Other Akron attractions are the Children's Zoo and the Railway of American museum. Admission charge to both.

The AAA club suggests this routing to Akron: From Circleville go north on U.S. 23 to Jct. with I-270; wet on I 270 to Jct. with I-71; northeast on I-71 to Jct. with I-80 South and U.S. 224; east on I-80 South and U.S. 224 to the tour area.

Claim King Was Swinger With Women

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. muted his criticism of the FBI after its director, J. Edgar Hoover, confronted him with wiretaps revealing King's alleged extramarital activities,

In an article discussing a new book about King, "The King God Didn't Save," by novelist John Williams, Time gives its version of a 1964 meeting between King and Hoover.

Time says Williams reports the FBI began tapping King's telephone and bugging his hotel rooms in 1963 and while it uncovered no subversion it "did turn up an astonishing amount of information about King's extensive and vigorous sexual activities."

Time continues: "Williams has the correct outline of the FBI tape story. What he does not have is precisely what happened at the celebrated meeting between FBI Director Hoover and King in 1964.

"Hoover, Time learned, explained to King just what damaging private detail he had on the tapes and lectured him that his morals should be those befitting a Nobel Prize winner. He also suggested that King should tone down his criticism of the FBI. King took the advice. His decline in black esteem followed, a decline scathingly narratd by Williams."

The fact that the FBI had been tapping King's telephone was disclosed last year by FBI agent Robert Nichols in a Houston, Tex., courtroom where boxer Cassius Clay was seeking to vacate a sentence for refusal to be inducted into the Army. One of the monitored conversations was between King and Clay.

Burger Urges Revamping Of Judiciary

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger proposed Monday creation of a council representing all branches of the federal government to bring the nation's court system up to date.

"In the supermarket age," he said, "we are like a merchant trying to operate a cracker barrel corner grocery store with the methods and equipment of 1900."

Burger proposed updating of the judicial system and warned of expecting too much of the federal courts in his first state of the judiciary message to the American Bar Association.

The white-haired jurist said the courts need more money, judges and trained administrators and a streamlining of their trial and appeals processes to retain public confidence.

He questioned the priorities of a nation that spends $200 million to develop the C5A airplane and $128 million on its federal judicial system.

For at least 50 years, he said, the federal court system has had steadily increasing burdens.

"Some of this," he said, "is because of new laws and decisions and some because of a tendency that is unique to America to look to the courts to solve all problems."

At the same time, Burger said, much of the judicial machinery has grown obsolete.

Burger told the lawyers and judges they should give urgent consideration to asking Congress to create a new judiciary council which would report to all three branches of the federal government on a wide range of matters affecting federal courts.

For example, he said, it could report on caseloads in particular districts, propose creation of temporary judgeships to meet urgent situations and study the present jurisdiction of federal courts.

Burger said the council could have six members, with two appointed by the president, two by Congress and two by the U.S. Judicial Conference, which he heads.

Mobutu On Tour Of Disneyland

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — President Joseph Mobutu of the Congo took a morning off from the business of his 12-day trip to the United States—encouraging investment in his central African nation—and toured Disneyland.

His favorite attraction? The Adventureland ride up a simulated Congo River.

"He thought it was very delightful and he chuckled when he saw the hippos," an aide reported Sunday. Unlike the Congo's, Disney hippos are mechanical.

Mobutu left Sunday for New York on the last leg of his visit.

More Collegians Going Into Police Work

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Growing numbers of college students are becoming police officers after they leave school.

Police and sheriff's departments and other Ohio law enforcement agencies have begun to register a slow, but steady, rise in applications from wouldbe policemen with college experience.

Higher pay and the evergrowing variety of jobs offered in police work have played an important part in drawing college-trained recruits.

Most departments do not keep figures on hand that detail the educational background of younger officers, but recruiters testify to the upswing in college - educated young people donning police uniforms.

"There has been an increasing trend of college kids coming in," according to Cincinnati police personnel officer Lt. H. Bogosian.

Two police training programs operated by the University of Cincinnati in cooperaton with the department bring 75 to 80 men annually into the 950-man force, Bogosian says. The recruiter claims uniforms worn on campus by police cadets are a big drawing cards for the programs.

Uniformed cadets sponsored on Cuyahoga County campuses by the county sheriff's department get ridicule instead of admiration, according to Col. Al Brockhurst of the department. Despite this, their numbers continue to increase.

"It's the same as the ROTC thing," he says, "but they still join up."

Civil Service Commission recruiters for the Toledo police department raised minimum education requirments in their last recruiting drive to one year of college with surprising results.

"I didn't think we'd get any response at all," says William Sokolowski, chief of the commission's classification section. "But surprisingly we've gotten 100 applicants with one, two or three years of college and half a dozen or so with degrees."

Sokolowski says only a year ago less than five per cent of police applicants in Toledo had more than a high school education. He also claims that since his department raised requirements, the quality of applicants who have gone to college has increased markedly.

"They used to be guys whose grades were down looking for something to do," he says. "The ones we get now are people who really want to do law enforcement work."

Sokolowski says all this has come about without any concerted effort on the part of the commission to drum up applications.

"They're applying to us," he says.

Dayton police recruiters report, "We're getting a higher percentage of college students. The last year has seen the biggest increase."

Officials at the state highway patrol training academy in Columbus also report "a definite increase" in the number of applicants with college background.

Not every force has attracted college students. Columbus police recruiters say the number of college - trained applicants they've received is "almost nil."

And a spokesman for the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department said, "it's been our experience that the college graduate is not interested in law enforcement."

The general Ohio picture seems to be, however, that more college students are giving serious thought to becoming law officers.

Most recruiters agree this trend has been good.

"Police work is like anything else," one official remarked. "The more education you have, the better off you are."

Gerry Siegel, who handles recruiting for the Franklin County Sheriff's Department, says the college men who join his department are more capable and earn promotions faster.

But the question remains why police careers are more attractive to students, while police campus relations are apparently deteriorating.

Recruiters offer several reasons.

First, they say, like other fields law enforcement has been blessed with technological advances which, in turn, means agencies need more specialized personnel.

The introduction to police work of computer technology, more sophisticated crime laboratory methods and improved management techniques requires police organizations to look harder for personnel with more education.

In some cases, veteran patrolmen are sent back to school to brush up on sociology, government, criminal justice, psychology and other police-related subjects.

From the students' point of view, police work offers greater and more varied challenges than it did in the past.

A second reason for heightened interest in law enforcement is money.

In Cleveland, for example, a starting policeman earns a little more than $9,000 a year and more than $10,000 after two years. This is competitive with what most graduates holding liberal arts degrees can make in private industry.

The Cleveland figures are high by national standards, but they are not isolated in Ohio. Toledo police are earning $10,000 annually by the time they have been in uniform 36 months.

Police in both Cincinnati and Columbus receive almost $9,800 after two years, and Dayton police are not far behind. Most recruiters feel that higher salaries have played an important part in students' interest.

In addition, some observers believe many college students are beginning to see police work as a chance to help solve the same social problems that send their protesting colleagues into the streets.

"They see the problems and they want to help," says Dayton police personnel officer P. J. Lust.

"We're getting involved in it too," he says. "We're trying to train our men to take an interest in the social problems of the community, even if it's not directly related to police work."

Toledo recruiter Sokolowski says, "Everybody's more aware in our society, what with all the publicity over civil rights and high crime rates. Police work has been brought more to the public's attention and this has helped bring the students in."

Veteran patrolmen are not sure how they like what may turn out to be the new look in law enforcement.

"They've been pretty openminded on the subject," says Lust. "But there's been a little skepticism—a little fear of the unknown. They're just sitting back and waiting to see how it all works out."

Office Opened For Servicemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda and a group of other sponsors have opened an office here to investigate and document complaints by servicemen about deprivation of their rights.

Miss Fonda said Saturday she plans to donate proceeds from a college lecture tour this fall to what she calls the "GI Office." She said other funds are expected from individuals.

She declined to give the address of the office, saying there was a fear of reprisals, but she said GI complaints should be addressed to P.O. Box 9746, Washington, D.C.

Information gathered, she said, will be turned over to "senators and congressmen who share our concern."

$3-Per-Hour Pay Increase OKd In Contract

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Plumbers Local 55 has ratified a three-year contract that calls for a $3-an-hour pay increase over the life of the pact, bringing wages to $10.81 an hour. The approval ended a 13-week strike.

The contract, ratified Sunday, also reportedly contains an affirmative action program for hiring more apprentices and workers from minority groups.

Pipefitters Local 120 remains the only trade union that has not yet approved a contract.

The strike has held up some $600 million in construction in Greater Cleveland.

The plumbers' contract—with the Cleveland Plumbing Contractors Association— affects some 1,600 plumbers in a five county area.

"It's the same as the ROTC thing," he says, "but they still join up."

Civil Service Commission recruiters for the Toledo police department raised minimum education requirments in their last recruiting drive to one year of college with surprising results.

"I didn't think we'd get any response at all," says William Sokolowski, chief of the commission's classification section. "But surprisingly we've gotten 100 applicants with one, two or three years of college and half a dozen or so with degrees."

Sokolowski says only a year ago less than five per cent of police applicants in Toledo had more than a high school education. He also claims that since his department raised requirements, the quality of applicants who have gone to college has increased markedly.

"They used to be guys whose grades were down looking for something to do," he says. "The ones we get now are people who really want to do law enforcement work."

Sokolowski says all this has come about without any concerted effort on the part of the commission to drum up applications.

"They're applying to us," he says.

Dayton police recruiters report, "We're getting a higher percentage of college students. The last year has seen the biggest increase."

Officials at the state highway patrol training academy in Columbus also report "a definite increase" in the number of applicants with college background.

Not every force has attracted college students. Columbus police recruiters say the number of college - trained applicants they've received is "almost nil."

And a spokesman for the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department said, "it's been our experience that the college graduate is not interested in law enforcement."

The general Ohio picture seems to be, however, that more college students are giving serious thought to becoming law officers.

Most recruiters agree this trend has been good.

"Police work is like anything else," one official remarked. "The more education you have, the better off you are."

Gerry Siegel, who handles recruiting for the Franklin County Sheriff's Department, says the college men who join his department are more capable and earn promotions faster.

But the question remains why police careers are more attractive to students, while police campus relations are apparently deteriorating.

Recruiters offer several reasons.

First, they say, like other fields law enforcement has been blessed with technological advances which, in turn, means agencies need more specialized personnel.

The introduction to police work of computer technology, more sophisticated crime laboratory methods and improved management techniques requires police organizations to look harder for personnel with more education.

In some cases, veteran patrolmen are sent back to school to brush up on sociology, government, criminal justice, psychology and other police-related subjects.

From the students' point of view, police work offers greater and more varied challenges than it did in the past.

A second reason for heightened interest in law enforcement is money.

In Cleveland, for example, a starting policeman earns a little more than $9,000 a year and more than $10,000 after two years. This is competitive with what most graduates holding liberal arts degrees can make in private industry.

The Cleveland figures are high by national standards, but they are not isolated in Ohio. Toledo police are earning $10,000 annually by the time they have been in uniform 36 months.

Police in both Cincinnati and Columbus receive almost $9,800 after two years, and Dayton police are not far behind. Most recruiters feel that higher salaries have played an important part in students' interest.

In addition, some observers believe many college students are beginning to see police work as a chance to help solve the same social problems that send their protesting colleagues into the streets.

"They see the problems and they want to help," says Dayton police personnel officer P. J. Lust.

"We're getting involved in it too," he says. "We're trying to train our men to take an interest in the social problems of the community, even if it's not directly related to police work."

Toledo recruiter Sokolowski says, "Everybody's more aware in our society, what with all the publicity over civil rights and high crime rates. Police work has been brought more to the public's attention and this has helped bring the students in."

Veteran patrolmen are not sure how they like what may turn out to be the new look in law enforcement.

"They've been pretty open-minded on the subject," says Lust. "But there's been a little skepticism—a little fear of the unknown. They're just sitting back and waiting to see how it all works out."

Office Opened For Servicemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda and a group of other sponsors have opened an office here to investigate and document complaints by servicemen about deprivation of their rights.

Miss Fonda said Saturday she plans to donate proceeds from a college lecture tour this fall to what she calls the "GI Office." She said other funds are expected from individuals.

She declined to give the address of the office, saying there was a fear of reprisals, but she said GI complaints should be addressed to P.O. Box 9746, Washington, D.C.

Information gathered, she said, will be turned over to "senators and congressmen who share our concern."

A Summertime Lunch Sandwich And A Salad

By ALICE DENHOFF

Sandwiches and salads make regular appearances on the summer lunchtime circuit, the two special performers that add a touch of stardom to your bill of fare.

Another regular on the summer luncheon table is iced tea. The clean, fresh taste goes well with everything and because it is non-filling and non-fattening, it is at hand right through the meal. Here's an easy to make 2 quarts, enough for 10 servings:

ICED TEA BY THE PITCHERFUL

1 quart of cold water
1-3 measuring cups of loose tea or 15 teabags
Lemon wedges and sugar to taste

Bring water to full rolling boil. Remove from heat and at once add tea. Stir and let stand for 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding an additional quart of cold water.

Keep at room temperature until ready to serve. Then pour into ice-filled glasses and add sugar and lemon.

HAM AVOCADO SANDWICHES

2 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ teaspoon lemon juice
4 thin slices rye bread
8 slices sandwich ham
2 small ripe avocados
4 lemon wedges
Parsley

Mix together first 2 ingredients; spread over the bread. Cover with the ham slices. Peel avocados, discard pits, cut into slices and arrange over ham. Garnish with lemon wedges and parsley.

Serves 4.

For a salad luncheon:

RAW MUSHROOM SALAD

1 pound fresh mushrooms, medium sized
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup olive oil
2 dashes cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1 pimiento, drained and minced
2 tablespoons drained capers
½ cup minced celery
Boston lettuce

Wash and dry mushrooms. Remove stems and save for other use. Cut mushrooms in medium thin slices. Marinate in marinade of next 5 ingredients. Marinate for about an hour in fridge.

Mix in next 3 ingredients. spoon into lettuce cups.

Serves 4.

For a delicious snack or as a starter or for a light dessert:

ORANGE STRAWBERRY FRUIT CUP

1 pint strawberries
2 small seedless oranges
2 to 3 tablespoons light brown sugar
Flaked coconut, (optional)

Remove stems from berries; wash and dry. Cut into medium slices. Peel and section oranges and remove membrane. Mix gently with berries and prinkle with sugar.

Cover and refrigerate for about 1 hour. Sprinkle with coconut if desired.

Serves 4.

Seek Successor To Nathan Pusey

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The name most often mentioned as successor to Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey is that of John W. Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare, and now head of the Urban Coalition, university sources say.

The next is S. I. Haykawa, president of San Francisco State College.

The seven-man Harvard Corporation sent out some 200,000 requests for advice on a replacement for Pusey, who has announced his retirement effective next June.

Push Women's Rights Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Martha Griffiths is counting on woman power to propel through the Senate and the state legislatures a constitutional amendment guaranteeing women equal rights with men.

"A lot of things have changed," the Michigan Democrat grinned as she savored a 350-15 victory in the House Monday. She had pried the measure from the Judiciary Committee shelf where it had collected dust for 47 years and engineered the floor victory.

But that was only the beginning, she said, pointing to the Senate where possibly fatal delays await the proposal. And after that, the amendment must be approved by 38 of the 50 legislatures before becoming a part of the constitution.

Other backers are not so optimistic about chances of the amendment. Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., who says she has felt more prejudice as a woman than as a Negro, is fearful that men who run the game of politics still may block the proposal.

She cited, for example, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., 82 and a widower, who sought to have the amendment sent back to committee for more study.

"Let's face it, Mr. Celler has been one of the champions for the civil rights of minorities—but he is like other men in feeling women have a different place and there should be definite limitations on them," Mrs. Chisholm said.

And the galleries, packed with women, weren't buying Celler's argument that "there is as much difference between a male and a female as there is between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse. Vive la difference."

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has approved a companion measure. Backers concede, however, there is enough opposition in the full committee at least to delay the amendment. Bayh is committed to pressing first for action on an amendment for direct election of the president, now ready for Senate action.

Until Monday, the House had never had a chance to vote on the women's amendment, which states that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The Senate twice has approved similar amendments—but with a rider preserving legislation purportedly protecting women.

The outnumbered opposition to the current amendment, led by Celler, contended no one could tell what effect it would have on a wide variety of laws, such as those relating to paternity, rape, military service, family matters and protection for working women. He promised early hearings if the measure were sent back to his committee, but the House brushed the suggestion aside.

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Warm and generally fair weather is in store for Ohio through Saturday. A weak high pressure area covering the state is expected to remain with us through that time, bringing clear skies and highs in the 80s.

Only Southern Ohio is expected to see any cloudiness during the next two days as a low pressure system over the Mississippi Valley makes its effect felt.

Lows the next two nights, should be in the upper 50s to the low 60s—about the same as this morning's low readings.

FORECASTS

OHIO — Mostly sunny central and north and variable cloudiness south Wednesday, highs in the low to mid 80s. Fair and cool tonight, lows from the upper 50s to the mid 60s.

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE, EAST LAKE SHORE, NORTHEAST INLAND, WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL — Mostly sunny and warm Wednesday highs in the low to mid 80s. Clear and cool tonight, lows from the upper 50s to the lower 60s. Outlook Thursday fair and warm.

SOUTHWEST AND SOUTHEAST — Fair and mild tonight, low in the low to mid 60s. Partly sunny with little temperature change Wednesday, high in the mid 80s.

Horse Riders Blaze Trail

HANCOCK, Mass. (AP) — Some 130 horseback riders are on a 312-mile, 12-day trip across the state in hopes of demonstrating feasibility of creating a statewide network of trails.

The riders left Berkshire Downs race track Sunday and planned to arrive in Plymouth Aug. 20.

The state Department of Natural Resources and the Massachusetts Horsemen's Council are sponsoring the ride.

Ambulance Siren A Dinner Bell

MIAMI (AP) — Morning after morning, precisely at 6:30, the wail of an ambulance siren split the sleepy quiet of an interstate expressway exit ramp.

Mrs. R. L. Fleming, whose home faces the ramp, became suspicious of the regularity of the emergency calls and telephoned the ambulance company.

"The ambulance company told me that a night shift ambulance driver who lived a few blocks away from me would sound his siren so his wife would know he was coming home and put the eggs on," she said.

The siren doesn't sound quite so frequently anymore.

Lemon wedges and sugar to taste

Bring water to full rolling boil. Remove from heat and at once add tea. Stir and let stand for 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding an additional quart of cold water.

Keep at room temperature until ready to serve. Then pour into ice-filled glasses and add sugar and lemon.

HAM AVOCADO SANDWICHES

2 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ teaspoon lemon juice
4 thin slices rye bread

Seek Successor To Nathan Pusey

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The name most often mentioned as successor to Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey is that of John W. Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare, and now head of the Urban Coalition, university sources say.

The next is S. I. Haykawa, president of San Francisco State College.

The seven-man Harvard Corporation sent out some 200,000 requests for advice on a replacement for Pusey, who has announced his retirement effective next June.

Push Women's Rights Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Martha Griffiths is counting on woman power to propel through the Senate and the state legislatures a constitutional amendment guaranteeing women equal rights with men.

"A lot of things have changed," the Michigan Democrat grinned as she savored a 350-15 victory in the House Monday. She had pried the measure from the Judiciary Committee shelf where it had collected dust for 47 years and engineered the floor victory.

But that was only the beginning, she said, pointing to the Senate where possibly fatal delays await the proposal. And after that, the amendment must be approved by 38 of the 50 legislatures before becoming a part of the constitution.

Other backers are not so optimistic about chances of the amendment. Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., who says she has felt more prejudice as a woman than as a Negro, is fearful that men who run the game of politics still may block the proposal.

She cited, for example, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., 82 and a widower, who sought to have the amendment sent back to committee for more study.

"Let's face it, Mr. Celler has been one of the champions for the civil rights of minorities—but he is like other men in feeling women have a different place and there should be definite limitations on them," Mrs. Chisholm said.

And the galleries, packed with women, weren't buying Celler's argument that "there is as much difference between a male and a female as there is between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse. Vive la difference."

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has approved a companion measure. Backers concede, however, there is enough opposition in the full committee at least to delay the amendment. Bayh is committed to pressing first for action on an amendment for direct election of the president, now ready for Senate action.

Until Monday, the House had never had a chance to vote on the women's amendment, which states that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The Senate twice has approved similar amendments—but with a rider preserving legislation purportedly protecting women.

The outnumbered opposition to the current amendment, led by Celler, contended no one could tell what effect it would have on a wide variety of laws, such as those relating to paternity, rape, military service, family matters and protection for working women. He promised early hearings if the measure were sent back to his committee, but the House brushed the suggestion aside.

Horse Riders Blaze Trail

HANCOCK, Mass. (AP) — Some 130 horseback riders are on a 312-mile, 12-day trip across the state in hopes of demonstrating feasibility of creating a statewide network of trails.

The riders left Berkshire Downs race track Sunday and planned to arrive in Plymouth Aug. 20.

The state Department of Natural Resources and the Massachusetts Horsemen's Council are sponsoring the ride.

Ambulance Siren A Dinner Bell

MIAMI (AP) — Morning after morning, precisely at 6:30, the wail of an ambulance siren split the sleepy quiet of an interstate expressway exit ramp.

Mrs. R. L. Fleming, whose home faces the ramp, became suspicious of the regularity of the emergency calls and telephoned the ambulance company.

"The ambulance company told me that a night shift ambulance driver who lived a few blocks away from me would sound his siren so his wife would know he was coming home and put the eggs on," she said.

The siren doesn't sound quite so frequently anymore.

Bouton Sets Retirement; Plans To Write 2nd Book

By JOHN HOTARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitcher Jim Bouton, author of the controversial book, "Ball Four," has called his own third strike.

He said he just didn't have it anymore and announced his retirement Monday from baseball.

Bouton said he didn't want to spend the next couple of years in the minor leagues trying to get his once-famed knuckleball back. He made the announcement at a news conference at the apartment complex where he lives.

Bouton had pitched and lost two games for Oklahoma City, where the Houston Astros sent him July 31.

"I've been having trouble with the knuckleball this year and it looks like it might take me another two or three years bouncing around in the minor leagues to perfect it," he said.

"I'll have two kids in school this fall and three next year. The minors are a very rough life for a family."

He said he'd rather make the break now instead of next spring because of job opportunities which might not be available then.

Meanwhile, the 31-year-old pitcher plans to see if he can make it in the semipros, indicating he will play for the Ridgewood Paramus Barons near his home in Wyckoff, N.J.

"Maybe they'll let me play if I can come up with a pitch," he laughed.

He isn't eligible to play for the Barons until next year.

He also will write a sequel to his best-seller.

Bouton said he decided to quit Saturday and tried to contact Astro General Manager Spec Richardson Sunday night.

The right-hander flew to Houston from Oklahoma City late Sunday night and told the club Monday morning he wanted to be put on the voluntary retirement list.

He is technically under suspension until the retirement is official.

Houston Manager Harry Walker said when the book came out this year that Bouton's pitching might suffer because he would be having interviews while on the road.

Bouton acknowledged Monday that it had.

He has drawn no fines from the Astros, although some consider the book critical of Richardson and Walker. He was called in for a conference with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bouton, who entered the majors with the New York Yankees in 1962 and stayed with them until 1968, has been severely criticized by his peers for the book, which includes his diary on locker room conversations and opinions of his Yankee teammates and other ball players.

Bouton was sent to Oklahoma City after all other major league clubs passed up a chance to pick him up on waivers for $20,000.

He had a 4-6 Houston record and a 5.42 ERA. His major league career record stands at 59-60.

Seaver, Mets Shut Down Pittsburgh, 10-2

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the blackout finally was lifted at Pittsburgh, the lights went out for the Pirates.

New York's resilient Mets parlayed 10 hits, 11 walks and three Pittsburgh errors with the crisp pitching of Tom Seaver for a 10-2 victory Monday night in a game delayed 27 minutes at the start by a power shutdown at the Pirates' new Three Rivers Stadium.

Seaver bounced back after a wobbly start to scatter six hits, pocket his 17th victory of the season and propel the Mets within 2½ lengths of first place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

In the only other activity in the majors, Oakland trimmed Minnesota 7-3 and Boston outlasted Detroit 11-10.

After a fire broke out in the vicinity of the stadium, power lines controlling the lights were shut off as a precautionary measure as the Pirates trotted onto the field for the start of the game.

When the lights came back on, the Pirates quickly set Seaver back, scoring twice with the help of three walks and Al Oliver's double.

Then the Pirates' eclipse began.

Two walks and a throwing error by first baseman Oliver on Seaver's potential inning-ending double play tap contributed to a five-run New York binge in the second.

Ellis went out for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the inning and Tommie Agee socked a two-run triple off reliever Dick Colpaert in the third. Colpaert and Jim Nelson then walked five more in the fourth as the Mets scored another pair without a hit for a 9-2 bulge.

Ex-Pirate Donn Clendenon, lustily jeered by the big crowd each time he came to bat, climaxed a 3-for-3 night in the seventh with his 16th homer of the season.

Seaver, meanwhile, settled down to blank the Pirates on five harmless singles over the final eight innings, bringing his season mark to 17-6 and earning the Mets a split of the four-game set.

While the Mets closed ground in the NL East, the A's cut into Minnesota's once-gaping American League West lead. They cuffed five pitchers for 19 hits, including a home run, two doubles and a single by Rick Monday in trimming the Twins for the third time in two days.

The loss left the Twins 6½ games ahead of second place California and seven up on Oakland.

Billy Conigliaro drove in four runs with his 15th homer and two singles, and his brother, Tony, delivered three with a single and two sacrifice flies as the Red Sox held off the Tigers in the other AL day game.

The Tigers, trailing 11-3 in the ninth, struck for seven runs, kayoing winner Sonny Siebert, before reliever Chuck Hartenstein fanned Bill Freehan for the final out with the tying run on base.

Brown Pitches Post 25 To Opening Win

Washington C. H. Post 25 advanced one step closer to the state championship with a 7-1 win over Leavittsburg in the opening round of the Ohio American Legion Tournament Monday at Ashland.

Post 25 called on its big righthander Bryce Brown to get it off on the right foot and Brown didn't fail. He was in complete command as he gave up one unearned run, two hits, one walk and fanned seven Leavittsburg swingers.

Brown aided his own cause driving in two runs with a basehit in the second inning. He is now 16-2 for the season and sports a remarkable 1.73 earned run average.

Washington put the game on ice in the second inning when they pushed five runs across the plate. They added one more in the third and came up with another taly in the top of the ninth. Leavittsburg picked up its lone marker in the sirth frame.

* * *

RANDY Alkire rapped two of the five Washington safeties while Billy Thomas did a fine job of backstopping for the Post nine.

Post 25 will see action this afternoon at 3:30 when they meet Kent. Kent has a season record of 20-11 and won its opening game downing Parma, 4-1.

This is the third time in the last six years Washington has gone to the state tournament and is the first time it has won the opening game.

Post 25 boasts a season record of 37-17.

Atomic Speedway Prepares For Buckeye 100 Special

Officials of Atomic Speedway are working out revisions for the 14th super-special for modified cars to be staged later this month and are considering a "feeler" for the use of the track for a Grand American circuit in the tri-state area.

Faster cars will have to work harder to earn the top money in the seventh annual Buckeye 100 to be held at Atomic on Aug. 21.

Four cars with the fastest times will share an additional $100 in prizes from the helmet dash to be added to the night's program, but they will not have the benefit of the pole positions among the 20 fastest cars to be eligible for the 100-lap nonstop feature.

To make the race more competitive the speedway has made a change to invert the first eight cars. The addition of the dash will make at least a six-event program, including a minimum of three heats and the consi.

* * *

PRIZES of more than $3,600 will be posted for the race, topped by the $1,000 for the winner of the feature. Second place will pay $600, third $300, fourth, $200, fifth $150, sixth $125, seventh $100 and down through 20th place.

Audie Swartz of Wheelersburg is the defending champion in the race and Dean Knittel of Portsmouth captured it three times in '64, '66 and '67. Sam Erwin of Portsmouth was the 1965 winner and Larry (Boom Boom) Cannon of Danville, Ill., took it in 1968.

The year's first super-special — the fifth annual Atomic 100 in July — went to Ralph Quarterson of Sharon, Pa., without surrendering the lead once.

The speedway — boasting new and additional seating and with the clay high banks ertended to three-eights of a mile — is 12 miles south of Chillicothe and west of Route 23 at Alma.

No definite arrangements have been made, but Atomic officials have been asked to give consideration to a proposal to stage the Grand American races featuring leading NASCAR drivers as part of a circuit in the area for the balance of the season.

Boice Wins At Saltcreek

Curt Boice won the fast feature to highlight the action at Saltcreek Valley Speedway Friday night.

Boice was trailed across the finish line by Ernie Adams, Bob Crace, Chico Coleman and Jerry Porter.

Crace was the fastest qualifier and Jim Lanman captured the helmet dash.

The consi was taken by Adams with Mike Short second and Estill Scarberry third.

Roger Speakman was winner of the first heat with Jim Porter and Jerry Porter following.

The second heat went to Jim Vanover with Mark Mills and Jake Rooker picking up second and third place.

Crace copped the third heat ahead of Lanman and Ike Shaffer.

Houston Manager Harry Walker said when the book came out this year that Bouton's pitching might suffer because he would be having interviews while on the road.

Bouton acknowledged Monday that it had.

He has drawn no fines from the Astros, although some consider the book critical of Richardson and Walker. He was called in for a conference with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bouton, who entered the majors with the New York Yankees in 1962 and stayed with them until 1968, has been severely criticized by his peers for the book, which includes his diary on locker room conversations and opinions of his Yankee teammates and other ball players.

Bouton was sent to Oklahoma City after all other major league clubs passed up a chance to pick him up on waivers for $20,000.

He had a 4-6 Houston record and a 5.42 ERA. His major league career record stands at 59-60.

Seaver, Mets Shut Down Pittsburgh, 10-2

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the blackout finally was lifted at Pittsburgh, the lights went out for the Pirates.

New York's resilient Mets parlayed 10 hits, 11 walks and three Pittsburgh errors with the crisp pitching of Tom Seaver for a 10-2 victory Monday night in a game delayed 27 minutes at the start by a power shutdown at the Pirates' new Three Rivers Stadium.

Seaver bounced back after a wobbly start to scatter six hits, pocket his 17th victory of the season and propel the Mets within 2½ lengths of first place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

In the only other activity in the majors, Oakland trimmed Minnesota 7-3 and Boston outlasted Detroit 11-10.

After a fire broke out in the vicinity of the stadium, power lines controlling the lights were shut off as a precautionary measure as the Pirates trotted onto the field for the start of the game.

When the lights came back on, the Pirates quickly set Seaver back, scoring twice with the help of three walks and Al Oliver's double.

Then the Pirates' eclipse began.

Two walks and a throwing error by first baseman Oliver on Seaver's potential inning-ending double play tap contributed to a five-run New York binge in the second.

Ellis went out for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the inning and Tommie Agee socked a two-run triple off reliever Dick Colpaert in the third. Colpaert and Jim Nelson then walked five more in the fourth as the Mets scored another pair without a hit for a 9-2 bulge.

Ex-Pirate Donn Clendenon, lustily jeered by the big crowd each time he came to bat, climaxed a 3-for-3 night in the seventh with his 16th homer of the season.

Seaver, meanwhile, settled down to blank the Pirates on five harmless singles over the final eight innings, bringing his season mark to 17-6 and earning the Mets a split of the four-game set.

While the Mets closed ground in the NL East, the A's cut into Minnesota's once-gaping American League West lead. They cuffed five pitchers for 19 hits, including a home run, two doubles and a single by Rick Monday in trimming the Twins for the third time in two days.

The loss left the Twins 6½ games ahead of second place California and seven up on Oakland.

Billy Conigliaro drove in four runs with his 15th homer and two singles, and his brother, Tony, delivered three with a single and two sacrifice flies as the Red Sox held off the Tigers in the other AL day game.

The Tigers, trailing 11-3 in the ninth, struck for seven runs, kayoing winner Sonny Siebert, before reliever Chuck Hartenstein fanned Bill Freehan for the final out with the tying run on base.

Brown Pitches Post 25 To Opening Win

Washington C. H. Post 25 advanced one step closer to the state championship with a 7-1 win over Leavittsburg in the opening round of the Ohio American Legion Tournament Monday at Ashland.

Post 25 called on its big righthander Bryce Brown to get it off on the right foot and Brown didn't fail. He was in complete command as he gave up one unearned run, two hits, one walk and fanned seven Leavittsburg swingers.

Brown aided his own cause driving in two runs with a basehit in the second inning. He is now 16-2 for the season and sports a remarkable 1.73 earned run average.

Washington put the game on ice in the second inning when they pushed five runs across the plate. They added one more in the third and came up with another taly in the top of the ninth. Leavittsburg picked up its lone marker in the sirth frame.

* * *

RANDY Alkire rapped two of the five Washington safeties while Billy Thomas did a fine job of backstopping for the Post nine.

Post 25 will see action this afternoon at 3:30 when they meet Kent. Kent has a season record of 20-11 and won its opening game downing Parma, 4-1.

This is the third time in the last six years Washington has gone to the state tournament and is the first time it has won the opening game.

Post 25 boasts a season record of 37-17.

Atomic Speedway Prepares For Buckeye 100 Special

Officials of Atomic Speedway are working out revisions for the 14th super-special for modified cars to be staged later this month and are considering a "feeler" for the use of the track for a Grand American circuit in the tri-state area.

Faster cars will have to work harder to earn the top money in the seventh annual Buckeye 100 to be held at Atomic on Aug. 21.

Four cars with the fastest times will share an additional $100 in prizes from the helmet dash to be added to the night's program, but they will not have the benefit of the pole positions among the 20 fastest cars to be eligible for the 100-lap non-stop feature.

To make the race more competitive the speedway has made a change to invert the first eight cars. The addition of the dash will make at least a six-event program, including a minimum of three heats and the consi.

* * *

PRIZES of more than $3,600 will be posted for the race, topped by the $1,000 for the winner of the feature. Second place will pay $600, third $300, fourth, $200, fifth $150, sixth $125, seventh $100 and down through 20th place.

Audie Swartz of Wheelersburg is the defending champion in the race and Dean Knittel of Portsmouth captured it three times in '64, '66 and '67. Sam Erwin of Portsmouth was the 1965 winner and Larry (Boom Boom) Cannon of Danville, Ill., took it in 1968.

The year's first super-special — the fifth annual Atomic 100 in July — went to Ralph Quarterson of Sharon, Pa., without surrendering the lead once.

The speedway — boasting new and additional seating and with the clay high banks ertended to three-eights of a mile — is 12 miles south of Chillicothe and west of Route 23 at Alma.

No definite arrangements have been made, but Atomic officials have been asked to give consideration to a proposal to stage the Grand American races featuring leading NASCAR drivers as part of a circuit in the area for the balance of the season.

Syracuse Tops Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester made things easy for Syracuse Monday night and the Chiefs stretched their International League baseball lead over the second place Red Wings to nine games.

It happened in the third inning as the Chiefs capitalized on two Rochester errors and used three hits to score all of their runs in a 3-2 win over the Wings.

In other International League action Monday night, Columbus bashed Richmond 7-2 and Winnipeg took 10 innings to stop Toledo 2-1 in a cellar battle. Louisville and Tidewater were rained out.

At Richmond, Columbus took advantage of 11 walks as winner Gene Garber six-hit the Braves. The Jets rapped a trio of Richmond hurlers for 10 hits.

Hector Valle's bases - loaded passed ball gave Winnipeg its win in the final frame. The Whips had picked up a 1-0 lead in the eighth inning, but Toledo knotted the score in the ninth.

In other first-round games Monday, Sandusky trounced Ottawa, 12-3; Lancaster edged Bridgeport, 2-1; Washington Court House downed Leavittsburg, 7-1; Sidney squeezed by Ashley, 2-1, and Kent beat Parma, 4-1.

Boice Wins At Saltcreek

Curt Boice won the fast feature to highlight the action at Saltcreek Valley Speedway Friday night.

Boice was trailed across the finish line by Ernie Adams, Bob Crace, Chico Coleman and Jerry Porter.

Crace was the fastest qualifier and Jim Lanman captured the helmet dash.

The consi was taken by Adams with Mike Short second and Estill Scarberry third.

Roger Speakman was winner of the first heat with Jim Porter and Jerry Porter following.

The second heat went to Jim Vanover with Mark Mills and Jake Rooker picking up second and third place.

Crace copped the third heat ahead of Lanman and Ike Shaffer.

Nixon Signs Jobless Pay Increases

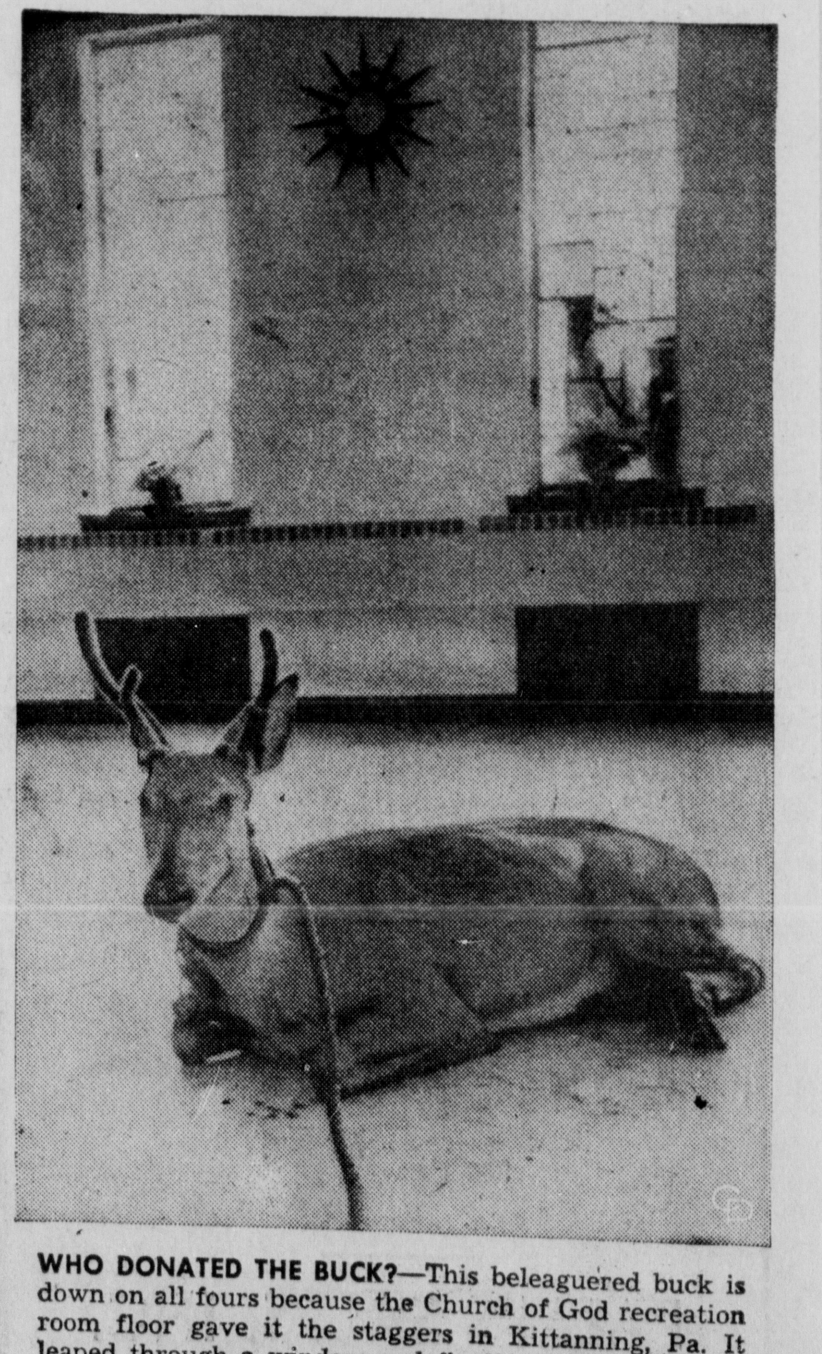
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Monday signed a bill under which unemployment insurance will be extended to about 4.7 million more workers and extra benefits will be available in times of high unemployment.

Congress balked at proposals to bring employes of large farms under the unemployment insurance system, but it did vote to include other large groups not hitherto covered.

These include an estimated 2.121 million employes of nonprofit organizations, 1.132 million employes of smaller business firms, 940,000 employes of state hospitals and colleges, 210,000 salesmen, route drivers and similar workers, 190,000 persons engaged in processing agricultural products and 160,000 Americans employed abroad by U.S. firms.

The new law also provides for unemployment payments to be extended as much as 13 weeks, with federal help, when the national percentage of insured unemployment reaches 4.5 per cent, or in an individual state when the rate increases 20 per cent over the preceding year and is at least 4 per cent. The extra benefits would be effective generally beginning in 1972, but provision is made for states to start them sooner if they wish.

The federal unemployment tax is increased one-tenths of one per cent. The base on which it is levied goes from $3,000 of wages to $4,200, effective in 1972.



WHO DONATED THE BUCK?—This beleaguered buck is down on all fours because the Church of God recreation room floor gave it the staggers in Kittanning, Pa. It leaped through a window and finally tranquilizers enabled rescuers to get that lasso on. Deer was released.

Nixon Signs Jobless Pay Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Monday signed a bill under which unemployment insurance will be extended to about 4.7 million more workers and extra benefits will be available in times of high unemployment.

Congress balked at proposals to bring employes of large farms under the unemployment insurance system, but it did vote to include other large groups not hitherto covered.

These include an estimated 2.121 million employes of nonprofit organizations, 1.132 million employes of smaller business firms, 940,000 employes of state hospitals and colleges, 210,000 salesmen, route drivers and similar workers, 190,000 persons engaged in processing agricultural products and 160,000 Americans employed abroad by U.S. firms.

The new law also provides for unemployment payments to be extended as much as 13 weeks, with federal help, when the national percentage of insured unemployment reaches 4.5 per cent, or in an individual state when the rate increases 20 per cent over the preceding year and is at least 4 per cent. The extra benefits would be effective generally beginning in 1972, but provision is made for states to start them sooner if they wish.

The federal unemployment tax is increased one-tenths of one per cent. The base on which it is levied goes from $3,000 of wages to $4,200, effective in 1972.

Crampton Set For PGA Tourney

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Bruce Crampton was waiting for his luggage at an airport, watching a series of conveyor belts snaking through, under and around walls and corridors.

"Do you think it will work?" a companion asked, looking skeptically at the arrangement designed to deliver the bags.

"I've got to believe in it," replied Crampton. "I'm at their mercy now."

Then he smiled and added:

"If it's in this country, I'll believe in it. If you people can't make it work, it won't work. This is the greatest country in the world. If you can't believe in this country, everyone is in trouble."

Crampton, a 34-year-old native of Australia, had just arrived for the $200,000 PGA National Championship that starts Thursday on the 6,962-yard, par-70 Southern Hills Country Club course.

The soft-spoken veteran of 14 years on the tough American tour and one of the game's most consistent performers will be one of the top candidates for the $40,000 first prize in this, the last of the four major championships offered annually.

His credentials are impressive. He won the rich Winchester Classic two weeks ago, finished second in the American Golf Classic last week and teamed with Orville Moody for second in the National Four-Ball three weeks ago.

That's a victory and two seconds in three starts, second only in recent showings to Jack Nicklaus. His $50,000 first prize at Westchester boosted him to his third consecutive $100,000 season and made him, with Gary Player, the only foreigners to reach $500,000 in a career on the American tour.

"If I'd won $50,000 when I'd first come over here, I think I'd have just turned around and gone home," said Crampton, who now lives with his wife and son in Dallas. "At that time you could just about retire on $50,000.

Crampton, a native of Sydney, came to the United States in 1957 as a 20-year-old, a two-year professional and the recent winner of the Australian Open.

"I'd been invited over to play in the Masters," Crampton recalled, "and I came over early to play in some tournaments. The first one was Houston and I won about $700. Arnold Palmer won the tournament. The first prize was about $6,000. They came out with a big silver cup to present him and it was full of money.

"I looked at it and my eyes bugged out to here. I didn't know there was that much money in the world. I decided then that this is the place for me."

Since making that decision, he has won nine tour titles and more than $540,00, ranking ninth on the all-time list. Even though he's a steady performer, he' a relative unknown to the average fan, when ranked along side some of the giants of the game.

"That's one reason I'm glad I won Westchester," said the modest man who doesn't mix much with other players on the tour.

"It was a big, important tournament. Now when I enter a tournament, maybe I'll be an asset to the promoters, to the sponsors. I want to play a lot to help them. I want to put something back in this game."

Although now a factor to be reckoned with everytime he enters a tournament, it hasn't always been easy for Crampton.

"When I came to this country," he said, "the restrictions on currency at home were such that you could only take $2,500 American out.

"So I came over to play with only $2,500 and it wasn't that much even at that time."

He said it takes hard work over a long stretch to make it.

"The players on the American tour are the best in the world. You've got to stay at it. (Bruce) Devlin found that out when he tried to go home a couple of times each year. You can't do it. There's a young player who was over here for a year who turned tail and ran. You can't do that. You've got to stay here.

"I think Tony Jacklin (the young Englishman who recently won the U.S. Open) will find that out. I don't think he can commute between here and England."

Tribe Calls Lou Camilli From Wichita

OAKLAND, Calif, (AP) —The Cleveland Indians have called up shortstop Lou Camilli from their Wichita farm club to fill the vacancy on their roster left when pitcher Dick Ellsworth was sold to the Milwaukee Brewers last Friday.

Camilli, whose batting average with the Aeros was .296, spent three weeks with the parent club last season but failed to get a hit in 14 trips to the plate.

"We're bringing up Lou for insurance," said Indians Manager Alvin Dark Monday before the Indians played the Aeros in Wichita on an off day for them in the American League race. The Indians won, 2-1.

Dark earlier had announced that Lou Klimchock turned down the coaching job offered him after the Indians officially released him Monday.

Camilli skipped the exhibition game in Wichita and went home to pack. He accompanied the the Indians to Oakland, where they open a three-game series tonight.

Eye Pension Plan For Boxing World

MONTREAL (AP) — A proposal to establish a pension plan for professional boxers is under study by the World Boxing Association.

The organization is holding its annual meeting here.

The WBA was asked Monday by Van Nixon, secretary of the Washington, D.C., Boxing Commission to establish a pension fund and make it available for any veteran of 25 pro fights once he becomes 55.

"We are the only sport that doesn't take care of its own," Nixon said.

Palmer Eyes His Chances In PGA Tilt

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) —"I want to win the PGA, no doubt about it, but I wouldn't be here if I didn't consider this tournament just as important."

Arnold Palmer had that word Monday for some 450 teen-agers who gathered for a clinic put on by the golfing great who flew from Tulsa, Okla., site of the PGA. It's the only major tournament Palmer has never won.

"I'm concerned with the disenchanted youth in our land, and I consider one of the most important things in life is to get kids on the golf course," he said. "I never found a kid on a golf course dipping in a dope bottle."

Palmer played seven holes with Texans Bobby Harwell and Ben Crenshaw, who tied for the low amateur in the U.S. Open, and Oklahomans Mark Debolt and Bruce Scott.

A crowd of 5,000 followed them over the Weeks Park Memorial Golf Course.

To Palmer's amazement, Harwell eagled the first hole and birdied the second.

Palmer jokingly gave him a long stare before teeing off on the next hole and Harwell proceeded to bogey two in a row.

"That kid is great . . . but I had to slow him down," laughed Palmer, who was even par over the holes played.

Chuvalo Is Called A 'Medical Risk'

MONTREAL (AP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champ, was singled out as a medical risk in a report Monday to the World Boxing Association presented by Dr. Leon Feldman, international medical adviser to the organization.

In recommending several stiff reforms, Dr. Feldman, of Asheville, N.C., suggested that Chuvalo be barred from the ring for his own good.

The medical adviser's recommendation, which is authoritative but not binding, followed the serious battering Chuvalo suffered Wednesday in New York by George Foreman. The fight was halted in the third round.

Sarazen Raps Overwatering Of Courses

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Gene Sarazen, one of four men who have won the Big Four titles in golf, finds it difficult to compare today's game with that of 30 and 40 years ago.

"They're overusing water on today's golf courses," Sarazen said in an interview. "They keep watering the courses just to make them green.

"They're not aware that nature can come in and knock them out. That's why so many of our courses turn into swamps when it rains.

"It's almost impossible to compare golf today with that of yesteryear," Sarazen said in a break during his visit to the Twin Cities and Hazeltine National Golf Club, site of the 1970 U.S. Open in June.

"When they say they have a course 7,000 yards long, they're lying. It's more like 8,500 yards. Because when you overwater a course, you're losing 30 to 40 yards a shot."

Sarazen, 68, figures that today's professionals are better players.

"No doubt about it," he said. "They are great players. Terrific power players. Jack Nicklaus is the most powerful hitter in the history of golf. He's the first guy I've seen win the British Open without putting well. He didn't need to worry about his two putts.

"If I had a game, though, between Nicklaus and Ben Hogan," Sarazen said, "I probably would take Hogan. He couldn't hit it as far as Nicklaus, but he always kept the ball in play."

"I wouldn't stand a chance," Sarazen said he has played Hazeltine three times and doesn't score well because of its length.

Tony Jacklin won the Open June 21 by seven strokes over Dave Hill, who criticized the many doglegs on the course and said all it needed was 80 acres of corn and some cows. The comments resulted in a $150 fine.

Crampton Set For PGA Tourney

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Bruce Crampton was waiting for his luggage at an airport, watching a series of conveyor belts snaking through, under and around walls and corridors.

"Do you think it will work?" a companion asked, looking skeptically at the arrangement designed to deliver the bags.

"I've got to believe in it," replied Crampton. "I'm at their mercy now."

Then he smiled and added:

"If it's in this country, I'll believe in it. If you people can't make it work, it won't work. This is the greatest country in the world. If you can't believe in this country, everyone is in trouble."

Crampton, a 34-year-old native of Australia, had just arrived for the $200,000 PGA National Championship that starts Thursday on the 6,962-yard, par-70 Southern Hills Country Club course.

The soft-spoken veteran of 14 years on the tough American tour and one of the game's most consistent performers will be one of the top candidates for the $40,000 first prize in this, the last of the four major championships offered annually.

His credentials are impressive. He won the rich Winchester Classic two weeks ago, finished second in the American Golf Classic last week and teamed with Orville Moody for second in the National Four-Ball three weeks ago.

That's a victory and two seconds in three starts, second only in recent showings to Jack Nicklaus. His $50,000 first prize at Westchester boosted him to his third consecutive $100,000 season and made him, with Gary Player, the only foreigners to reach $500,000 in a career on the American tour.

"If I'd won $50,000 when I'd first come over here, I think I'd have just turned around and gone home," said Crampton, who now lives with his wife and son in Dallas. "At that time you could just about retire on $50,000.

Crampton, a native of Sydney, came to the United States in 1957 as a 20-year-old, a two-year professional and the recent winner of the Australian Open.

"I'd been invited over to play in the Masters," Crampton recalled, "and I came over early to play in some tournaments. The first one was Houston and I won about $700. Arnold Palmer won the tournament. The first prize was about $6,000. They came out with a big silver cup to present him and it was full of money.

"I looked at it and my eyes bugged out to here. I didn't know there was that much money in the world. I decided then that this is the place for me."

Since making that decision, he has won nine tour titles and more than $540,00, ranking ninth on the all-time list. Even though he's a steady performer, he' a relative unknown to the average fan, when ranked along side some of the giants of the game.

"That's one reason I'm glad I won Westchester," said the modest man who doesn't mix much with other players on the tour.

"It was a big, important tournament. Now when I enter a tournament, maybe I'll be an asset to the promoters, to the sponsors. I want to play a lot to help them. I want to put something back in this game."

Although now a factor to be reckoned with everytime he enters a tournament, it hasn't always been easy for Crampton.

"When I came to this country," he said, "the restrictions on currency at home were such that you could only take $2,500 American out.

"So I came over to play with only $2,500 and it wasn't that much even at that time."

He said it takes hard work over a long stretch to make it.

"The players on the American tour are the best in the world. You've got to stay at it. (Bruce) Devlin found that out when he tried to go home a couple of times each year. You can't do it. There's a young player who was over here for a year who turned tail and ran. You can't do that. You've got to stay here.

"I think Tony Jacklin (the young Englishman who recently won the U.S. Open) will find that out. I don't think he can commute between here and England."

Tribe Calls Lou Camilli From Wichita

OAKLAND, Calif, (AP) —The Cleveland Indians have called up shortstop Lou Camilli from their Wichita farm club to fill the vacancy on their roster left when pitcher Dick Ellsworth was sold to the Milwaukee Brewers last Friday.

Camilli, whose batting average with the Aeros was .296, spent three weeks with the parent club last season but failed to get a hit in 14 trips to the plate.

"We're bringing up Lou for insurance," said Indians Manager Alvin Dark Monday before the Indians played the Aeros in Wichita on an off day for them in the American League race. The Indians won, 2-1.

Dark earlier had announced that Lou Klimchock turned down the coaching job offered him after the Indians officially released him Monday.

Camilli skipped the exhibition game in Wichita and went home to pack. He accompanied the the Indians to Oakland, where they open a three-game series tonight.

Eye Pension Plan For Boxing World

MONTREAL (AP) — A proposal to establish a pension plan for professional boxers is under study by the World Boxing Association.

The organization is holding its annual meeting here.

The WBA was asked Monday by Van Nixon, secretary of the Washington, D.C., Boxing Commission to establish a pension fund and make it available for any veteran of 25 pro fights once he becomes 55.

"We are the only sport that doesn't take care of its own," Nixon said.

Palmer Eyes His Chances In PGA Tilt

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) —"I want to win the PGA, no doubt about it, but I wouldn't be here if I didn't consider this tournament just as important."

Arnold Palmer had that word Monday for some 450 teen-agers who gathered for a clinic put on by the golfing great who flew from Tulsa, Okla., site of the PGA. It's the only major tournament Palmer has never won.

"I'm concerned with the disenchanted youth in our land, and I consider one of the most important things in life is to get kids on the golf course," he said. "I never found a kid on a golf course dipping in a dope bottle."

Palmer played seven holes with Texans Bobby Harwell and Ben Crenshaw, who tied for the low amateur in the U.S. Open, and Oklahomans Mark Debolt and Bruce Scott.

A crowd of 5,000 followed them over the Weeks Park Memorial Golf Course.

To Palmer's amazement, Harwell eagled the first hole and birdied the second.

Palmer jokingly gave him a long stare before teeing off on the next hole and Harwell proceeded to bogey two in a row.

"That kid is great . . . but I had to slow him down," laughed Palmer, who was even par over the holes played.

Chuvalo Is Called A 'Medical Risk'

MONTREAL (AP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champ, was singled out as a medical risk in a report Monday to the World Boxing Association presented by Dr. Leon Feldman, international medical adviser to the organization.

In recommending several stiff reforms, Dr. Feldman, of Asheville, N.C., suggested that Chuvalo be barred from the ring for his own good.

The medical adviser's recommendation, which is authoritative but not binding, followed the serious battering Chuvalo suffered Wednesday in New York by George Foreman. The fight was halted in the third round.

Sarazen Raps Overwatering Of Courses

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Gene Sarazen, one of four men who have won the Big Four titles in golf, finds it difficult to compare today's game with that of 30 and 40 years ago.

"They're overusing water on today's golf courses," Sarazen said in an interview. "They keep watering the courses just to make them green.

"They're not aware that nature can come in and knock them out. That's why so many of our courses turn into swamps when it rains.

"It's almost impossible to compare golf today with that of yesteryear," Sarazen said in a break during his visit to the Twin Cities and Hazeltine National Golf Club, site of the 1970 U.S. Open in June.

"When they say they have a course 7,000 yards long, they're lying. It's more like 8,500 yards. Because when you overwater a course, you're losing 30 to 40 yards a shot."

Sarazen, 68, figures that today's professionals are better players.

"No doubt about it," he said. "They are great players. Terrific power players. Jack Nicklaus is the most powerful hitter in the history of golf. He's the first guy I've seen win the British Open without putting well. He didn't need to worry about his two putts.

"If I had a game, though, between Nicklaus and Ben Hogan," Sarazen said, "I probably would take Hogan. He couldn't hit it as far as Nicklaus, but he always kept the ball in play."

"I wouldn't stand a chance,"

Sarazen said he has played Hazeltine three times and doesn't score well because of its length.

Tony Jacklin won the Open June 21 by seven strokes over Dave Hill, who criticized the many doglegs on the course and said all it needed was 80 acres of corn and some cows. The comments resulted in a $150 fine.

House Panel Wants Facts Behind Pornography Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is fuming at White House researchers who monitored the responses of 23 young men as they watched a stag movie. Chairman Robert N.C. Nix, D-Pa., demands an explanation.

Nix termed the experiment revolting, and said he would have subpoenaed Mrs. James L. Howard, Clifford S. Reifler and Myron B. Liptzin of the President's Commission on Pornography if they hadn't volunteered to testify.

The trio, from the University of North Carolina, have said the experiment demonstrated prolonged exposure to pornography becomes boring.

Nix said Monday the experiment encouraged students to violate moral standards at a time when they are questioning all values established by their elders.

"I want to know what the justification of this experiment is that it warrants breakdown of the culture," Nix said in an interview. "I don't think any culture has survived without fixed moral values.

"There have been experiments that seemed questionable but proved to benefit all mankind," he added. "If this proves to be that, I'll accept it. But I'll be damned if I'll take it like it is."

The commission's preliminary finding that pornography does not cause sex crimes and is not harmful was challenged in opening testimony before Nix's postal operations subcommittee by a Salt Lake City psychologist.

"Because of the extreme complexity of the problem and the uniqueness of individual human experience," Dr. Victor B. Cline, said in prepared testimony, "it is doubtful that we will ever have absolutely convincing scientific proof that pornography is or isn't harmful."

Cline, chairman of the Salt Lake Area Youth Protection Committee, said reports that sex crimes dropped 31 per cent in Denmark after pornography was legalized are misleacing because public indecency, voyeurism, male prostitution and sale of pornography are no longer counted as crimes in Denmark.

Cline said long-term effects of pornography cannot be determined from short-term studies such as those conducted by the presidential commission or by Denmark's one-year experience with legalized pornography.

"We may have to wait possibly for a generation," he said in his prepared remarks, to note its full effect on the life styles, marriage, patterns of divorce and the general happiness and well being of the Danish People."

Iron Ore Carving Believed To Be Norse Rune Stone

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP) — An iron ore carving that has been on display here since 1905 as an Ohio Indian artifact might instead be a Norse rune stone left by 12th century Viking explorers or settlers.

The four-inch-high, three-pound object has a woman's face carved on it and, because of a hole in its base, it is considered possibly to have been a grave marker.

The object, found in Plain Township in Stark County, was turned over to the Massillon library in 1905 from the collection of the late Dr. Abraham Pease. Dr. Pease said he purchased the ore in 1880 from the family of Christen Spangler. Spangler reportedly found the carving about 1800 while cutting timber to build a house.

Dr. Clyde Keeler of Central State Hospital, Milledgeville, Ga., raised the possibility of the artifact being a rune stone in a letter to the museum last month.

Dr. Keeler said he had been hunting for the stone for 10 years since reading a reprint of a letter written in 1880 by Dr. Pease to the Ohio Historical Society. The letter described the stone as "a specimen of aboriginal art."

Dr. Keeler said the inscription at the top of the stone is in runic characters interpreted as giving the date Sept. 12, 1154.

If the stone is a genuine Norse relic, it is one of two known pieces of Viking picture art in North America, Dr. Keeler said.

Other rune stones found in North America carry samples of runic writing without pictures. Two small objects dating from the Viking age have been found in northern Newfoundland, but no authentic Viking works have been found any further south.

On Dr. Keeler's recommendation the stone was placed in a bank vault, since another runic stone previously reported found in Ohio in Ross County was stolen.

Floodwaters Receding In Carolinas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thundershowers lingered in rain-plagued sections of the Southeast today, but rivers and streams generally receded in western North Carolina following a two-day downpour.

The Weather Bureau indicated any substantial new rains in the western Carolinas could pose added flood threats for that region because the ground already was well soaked.

Several counties in western North Carolina reported heavy damage to croplands, losses of cattle, flooded homes and highways as a result of more than 11 inches in some areas since the week began. No injuries have been reported.

Forecasters expected most rivers to crest during the night. Many streams began receding late Monday.

Mild weather dominated most of the nation outside the Pacific Northwest and adjacent sections of the Rockies.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 49 at Kalispell, Mont., to 95 at Needles, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz.

the insecurity of being laid off, or the insecurity of a big doctor bill. They don't really sense, nearly as directly as their parents, the effects of the present recession. . . ."

A rapid talker, Palmer wore blue jeans, a green shirt and—unlike many NSA delegates shoes. His full mustache droops. His black hair is a bit scraggly, but not very long by the standards of today's youth. His smiles are faint, his scowls are deep.

The generation gap is increasing, he said, in the sense that "awareness" spreads much faster among students than in other parts of society. He said students are much less fatalistic about what can be done or can't be done.

"More and more college people are thinking in terms of 'let's do it' instead of 'don't tell me it can't be done.' They want to change things around," he said. "People don't want to become pawns for someone else's ego."

How about charges that campus unrest is Communist supported?

Palmer said his group, the NSA, "has no backing from anybody except for a couple of grants from foundations."

He said that talk of Communist support is rather irrelevant anyway.

"It shouldn't be a question of who we're backed by as long as we're responsive to the students," he said. "The students of the colleges and universities set our policies."

Palmer also had these observations:

Drugs —They have become a factor on campus. "A whole new culture has developed around drugs. The laws are terrible, and enforcement of the laws is terrible."

Indochina: "The whole situation . . . is approaching the point where there is no middle ground. We've got to get out! We're not really welcome there."

Repression: "In terms of political repression, there has been an increase" since Richard M. Nixon became President.

Universities: "It's time for universities to start turning out people less professionally oriented and more people oriented."

2 Ohioans Are Honored As Heroes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Toledo high school student who died trying to rescue two teen-age girls from drowning and a Cleveland mailman who saved a child trapped in a runaway car were awarded bronze medals today by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

They were among 21 persons in 14 states and two Canadian provinces recognized by the commission for acts of heroism. The medals were accompanied by a total $13,250 in monetary grants.

The commission said Scott Lee Symington, 15, saved Linda W. Whittaker, 14, from drowning in the Presque Isle River, Connorville, Mich., on Aug. 5, 1969, and then died attempting to rescue Gaye C. Hoener, 15.

The girls had been wading when they slipped and fell into the turbulent water and were caught in a whirlpool. Symington went to their aid and managed to thrust Miss Whittaker out of the whirlpool but drowned trying to locate Miss Hoener.

Anthony Montville, 50, was credited with rescuing Daniel L. Fuentes, 3, from a runaway auto in Cleveland Oct. 17, 1969.

The commission said Montville spotted the child in the rear seat of a car that was rolling down a hill. He caught up with the car on foot and grasped the door handle but was unable to get leverage to open it and slid along the pavement with the moving vehicle.

Finally, Montville got the door open, climbed into the front seat and, by pumping forcibly on the deactivated power brakes, brought the car to a halt within two feet of a utility pole.

Ohio Solons Near End Of Probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thirteen to 15 persons are expected to appear before the legislative committee studying campus disorders as it winds up more than a month of hearings.

The hearings began July 7 and have continued on all of the 12 state university campuses. The joint committee broke into three subcommittees to take testimony around the state.

The full committee, headed by Rep. Robert E. Levitt, R-91 Canton, goes into session in the capitol at 1:30 p. m. today and will wrap-tup testimony tomorrow.

Levit said it is expected to be "two or three" weeks before members can agree on a report and decided whether a special session of the legislature is needed to enact any proposed laws.

At least one member, Rep. Mark C. Schinnerer, R-49 Lakewood, doesn't believe any new laws are needed. Schinnerer, former superintendent of Cleveland public schools, is not seeking re-election.

"There isn't any law which can correct the basic thing which is wrong with our universities," Schinnerer said. "That basic flaw is poor internal management."

If the legislature does go into special session, Schinnerer said it should confine its enactments to resolutions backing up committee findings and "pose a threat to management which has not been managing."

House Panel Wants Facts Behind Pornography Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is fuming at White House researchers who monitored the responses of 23 young men as they watched a stag movie. Chairman Robert N.C. Nix, D-Pa., demands an explanation.

Nix termed the experiment revolting, and said he would have subpoenaed Mrs. James L. Howard, Clifford S. Reifler and Myron B. Liptzin of the President's Commission on Pornography if they hadn't volunteered to testify.

The trio, from the University of North Carolina, have said the experiment demonstrated prolonged exposure to pornography becomes boring.

Nix said Monday the experiment encouraged students to violate moral standards at a time when they are questioning all values established by their elders.

"I want to know what the justification of this experiment is that it warrants breakdown of the culture," Nix said in an interview. "I don't think any culture has survived without fixed moral values.

"There have been experiments that seemed questionable but proved to benefit all mankind," he added. "If this proves to be that, I'll accept it. But I'll be damned if I'll take it like it is."

The commission's preliminary finding that pornography does not cause sex crimes and is not harmful was challenged in opening testimony before Nix's postal operations subcommittee by a Salt Lake City psychologist.

"Because of the extreme complexity of the problem and the uniqueness of individual human experience," Dr. Victor B. Cline, said in prepared testimony, "it is doubtful that we will ever have absolutely convincing scientific proof that pornography is or isn't harmful."

Cline, chairman of the Salt Lake Area Youth Protection Committee, said reports that sex crimes dropped 31 per cent in Denmark after pornography was legalized are misleading because public indecency, voyeurism, male prostitution and sale of pornography are no longer counted as crimes in Denmark.

Cline said long-term effects of pornography cannot be determined from short-term studies such as those conducted by the presidential commission or by Denmark's one-year experience with legalized pornography.

"We may have to wait possibly for a generation," he said in his prepared remarks, to note its full effect on the life styles, marriage, patterns of divorce and the general happiness and well being of the Danish People."

Iron Ore Carving Believed To Be Norse Rune Stone

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP) — An iron ore carving that has been on display here since 1905 as an Ohio Indian artifact might instead be a Norse rune stone left by 12th century Viking explorers or settlers.

The four-inch-high, three-pound object has a woman's face carved on it and, because of a hole in its base, it is considered possibly to have been a grave marker.

The object, found in Plain Township in Stark County, was turned over to the Massillon library in 1905 from the collection of the late Dr. Abraham Pease. Dr. Pease said he purchased the ore in 1880 from the family of Christen Spangler. Spangler reportedly found the carving about 1800 while cutting timber to build a house.

Dr. Clyde Keeler of Central State Hospital, Milledgeville, Ga., raised the possibility of the artifact being a rune stone in a letter to the museum last month.

Dr. Keeler said he had been hunting for the stone for 10 years since reading a reprint of a letter written in 1880 by Dr. Pease to the Ohio Historical Society. The letter described the stone as "a specimen of aboriginal art."

Dr. Keeler said the inscription at the top of the stone is in runic characters interpreted as giving the date Sept. 12, 1154.

If the stone is a genuine Norse relic, it is one of two known pieces of Viking picture art in North America, Dr. Keeler said.

Other rune stones found in North America carry samples of runic writing without pictures. Two small objects dating from the Viking age have been found in northern Newfoundland, but no authentic Viking works have been found any further south.

On Dr. Keeler's recommendation the stone was placed in a bank vault, since another runic stone previously reported found in Ohio in Ross County was stolen.

Floodwaters Receding In Carolinas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thundershowers lingered in rain-plagued sections of the Southeast today, but rivers and streams generally receded in western North Carolina following a two-day downpour.

The Weather Bureau indicated any substantial new rains in the western Carolinas could pose added flood threats for that region because the ground already was well soaked.

Several counties in western North Carolina reported heavy damage to croplands, losses of cattle, flooded homes and highways as a result of more than 11 inches in some areas since the week began. No injuries have been reported.

Forecasters expected most rivers to crest during the night. Many streams began receding late Monday.

Mild weather dominated most of the nation outside the Pacific Northwest and adjacent sections of the Rockies.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 49 at Kalispell, Mont., to 95 at Needles, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz.
